A new supermarket on Route 62 north of Warren Borough was discussed at last night's meeting of Warren County Planning Commission. The proposed Comet market would have parking spaces for 94 cars. Planners also discussed traffic problems and the planned Warren bypass. Page One.

Eisenhower High School's new addition may cost less than expected. When low bids for various parts of the project were totaled last night, they came to $52,839 less than the project's previously estimated cost. Page One.

Warren borough police found two men inside Lewis Market at 4:30 a.m. yesterday. Jesse Ross Hoovler Jr., 24, of 103 Conewango ave., and Kenneth G. Gorzyanski of Erie were charged with burglary and larceny. Page One.

Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau, a tourist promotion group, will send a questionnaire to owners of tourist facilities next week. The bureau is gathering information for planning purposes. Page One.

Roy Swanson got himself and the Warren Dragon baseball team off on the right foot yesterday. He tossed a no-hitter at the Meadville Bulldogs and won a 2-0 decision. Swanson tossed three no-hitters as a junior last year. None of the visitors hit the ball out of the infield. In three trips to the plate Swanson batted out a triple, one of four Dragon hits. Cassius Clay said that he would not enter the Army under any circumstances. Bob Evans, president of the WBA, said that this would leave the heavyweight throne in doubt. If Clay does not take the oath in a week he faces a five-year jail sentence. Evans said that the WBA would not make any decisions until after the induction. Page A9.

Henri Richard scored a hat trick to lead the Montreal Canadiens to a 6-2 win over the Toronto Maple Leafs in the first game of the best of seven Stanley Cup playoff. Yvan Cournoyer scored a pair of goals for the winners. Larry Hillman and Jim Pappin scored goals for the underdog Leafs. Page A10.

CONTRACTORS GATHER AT EISENHOWER BID OPENING

Warren County School District offices were full of architects, educators, contractors and lawyers last night as bids were opened for the addition to Eisenhower High School.

$52,839 LESS THAN ESTIMATE

Eisenhower Addition Bids Opened

The addition to Eisenhower High School may cost less than expected.

School officials opened bids last night. When the various low bids for projects connected with the addition were added up, they totaled $1,088,161, which is $52,839 less than the architect's estimated cost of the addition.

The low bids were tentatively accepted last night. Final acceptance of the bids is expected next week, when Warren County School District Authority and the finance committee of the school board will meet with a financial expert from Pittsburgh, William Dom of Moore, Leonard & Lynch.

Bonds must be sold before construction can begin, said district school superintendent T. K. Barratt last night. Construction is expected to begin before June 1. The addition should be finished by Dec. 18, 1968.

Bids were opened last night by J. Russell Hanson, authority chairman.

Beyer Construction Co., Inc., of Warren submitted the low bid for general construction. The local firm bid $673,165; the architect's estimate was $763,500. Others bidding were Rodney W. DeVore, Inc., Meadville, $721,800; Carl E. Swanson & Sons, Bradford, $736,800; and Alger-Rau & Associates, Cleveland, Ohio, $776,500.

David N. Brown & Son of Bradford had the low plumbing contract bid of $89,821; the architect's estimate was $104,700. Others bidding were Eckert Plumbing Co., Oil City, $92,400; William T. Spaeder Co., Erie, $92,447; and Sans Corporation, Jamestown, $105,000.

Borough Police Rout Theft Try

Warren borough police early yesterday morning surprised two men who had entered Lewis Market at 303 Pennsylvania ave. East. Officers were faced by stiff resistance from one.

Officers Robert R. Kates and Richard McWilliams, at 4:30 a.m., noticed that a light above the safe at the market was out and entered the store to investigate.

Found inside were Kenneth George Groszyski, 22, of Erie and Jesse Ross Hoovler Jr., 24, of 103 Conewango ave. One of the men was hiding in a rest room while the other hid under a workbench.

Hoovler charged the officers and became violent to the point where it was necessary to subdue him by hitting him three times and finally handcuffing the man.

The Warren man, currently on parole, was taken to Warren General Hospital for treatment and x-rays before being brought to the station where, with Groszyski, he was processed later in the morning.

Youngsville Bypass Roadblocked

Another obstacle to Youngsville bypass construction has arisen.

William F. Trozell, district highway engineer in Franklin said yesterday that before the bypass can be built, the Pennsylvania Railroad must get permission to service the Agway center near Irvine. Up till now, the Agway has been serviced by the New York Central. But NYC tracks are in the way of the bypass.

The Interstate Commerce Commission recently approved a request that the New York Central be allowed to use nearby Pennsy tracks. Trozell said he did not know what effect that decision might have on the Agway situation. He did say the ICC must act to clear up the present problem.

"This is the only thing that's holding us up," he said. Trozell said deputy chief highway engineer Robert Rosser was dealing with the matter in Harrisburg. Rosser could not be reached. See BYPASS Page A2

When the lowest bids were picked out and added to find the project's total cost, the result was more than $50,000 below what had been expected. (Photo by Mahan)

The heating construction contract low bid was higher than the architect's estimate. R. E. North Co. of Erie submitted the low bid of $144,000. The architect's estimate was $142,500. Others submitting bids were R. M. Clougherty, Erie, $147,940; David N. Brown & Son, Bradford, $149,718; William T. Spaeder Co., Erie, $157,572; and Sans Corporation, Jamestown, N.Y., $159,951.

Bevefino Electric Co. of Warren submitted the low electrical construction bid of $150,240. The only other bid was of $197,000 by Trico Electric, Inc., Erie. The architect's estimate was $125,300. The authority decided to accept an alternate bid by Bevefino, $1,350 higher than his base bid, in order to provide clocks for all classrooms.

Richard A. Kehew submitted the only bid for laboratory equipment for the new science section. Representing Sjostrom Scientific Equipment, the firm bid $30,935. That equipment had been figured into the estimate of the general construction contract by the architect.

One final contract must yet be bid: a sewage treatment plant. Bids on the plant are expected to be opened about May 25.

Warren Bypass, Supermarket Topic of Planning Meeting

Efforts continued last night at the regular meeting of the Warren County Planning Commission to expedite action on a proposed Route 6 Warren bypass.

Planners agreed that a joint meeting be scheduled as soon as possible with the borough planning commission to discuss forming a united front in the battle to solve not only present but anticipated traffic problems resultant from the Kinzua Dam and Allegheny Reservoir.

The commission was in session for more than two hours while members reviewed subdivision proposals and the construction of a new supermarket on Route 62 north of the borough.

Plans were revealed for a Comet Market to be constructed by Sam Levy of the Jefferson Wholesale Company, Punxsutawney, as designed by Warren Architect Jeremy Fisher. The market would be built in an area well off the highway with parking spaces for 94 cars.

Planners approved that a required variance to accommodate the new facility be recommended to the Zoning Board of Adjustment. They also will recommend to the adjustment board that special permits be issued Warren Summer Theater to operate in an agricultural district as outlined in Article 14 of the zoning code and that Richard Wade, owner of Wade's Woods camping and recreational area, be allowed to add a swimming and wading pool to his current facilities. Both projects are located on the Scandia rd.

In viewing directional signs to the Kinzua Dam and Allegheny Reservoir, Planning Director Robert Peterson noted that the U.S. Forest Service is engaged in designing and developing signs that would be uniform, standard and unique to be used in Warren, McKean, and Cattaraugus counties—the counties to pay for those located within their boundaries. It is expected that Forest Service landscape architects will have several designs ready within a few weeks. The three county planning commissions will then get together and decide on a choice. The present conglomeration of such signs would then be done away with. In a meeting Wednesday night See PLANNERS Page A2

First Strikes At Vietnam Port

BY R.W. APPLE JR

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SAIGON—United States planes struck targets in Haiphong yesterday for the first time.

Dozens of jet fighter bombers from the Aircraft Carrier Kitty Hawk pounded a power plant a mile from the center of the port city's business district. At the same time, planes from the carrier Ticonderoga hit a second power plant on the northeastern fringe of the city, two miles from downtown.

Rear Adm. David C. Richardson of Meridian, Miss., commander of the carrier task force operating in the Gulf of Tonkin, conceded that some damage had been inflicted on a residential district in the attack on the plant a mile from the center of the city.

Speaking with reporters on the Kitty Hawk, the admiral said: "Between the power plant and a small canal to the east of it, there is a little street. There was some destruction in there but very few places. We saw no evidence of damage to any significant number of houses in our photographs."

Richardson emphasized that all possible precautions against extensive civilian casualties had been taken.

One senior American official, who was unwilling to permit the use of his name, described the strike on Haiphong as a "tremendously important intensification—escalation, if you will—of the air war."

He said it was part of series of steps ordered by the White House to penalize North Vietnam for refusing to agree to negotiations.

Other power plants have been struck in the past, including a number substantially larger than either of those hit yesterday. But the symbolic significance of bombing Haiphong itself for the first time out-weighed this fact, diplomats here said.

An aviator who took part in the raids described them as "the most sensitive so far."

American pilots had ventured no closer than two miles to Haiphong before yesterday's attack. On June 29, 1965, Navy planes bombed a petroleum depot two miles from the city while Air Force planes hit a larger depot three miles from Hanoi, the capital.

Following those strikes and others later in the year, the See HAIPHONG Page A2

Vacation Survey Planned

As one of the first steps to determine the available facilities which Warren County can offer tourists, the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau will a questionnaire next week to operators of motels, hotels, tourist homes, trailer courts, camp grounds, resorts and restaurants.

Leroy Schneck, committee chairman, said the questionnaire will ask for details regarding number of rooms, special facilities, dining rooms, rates, etc.

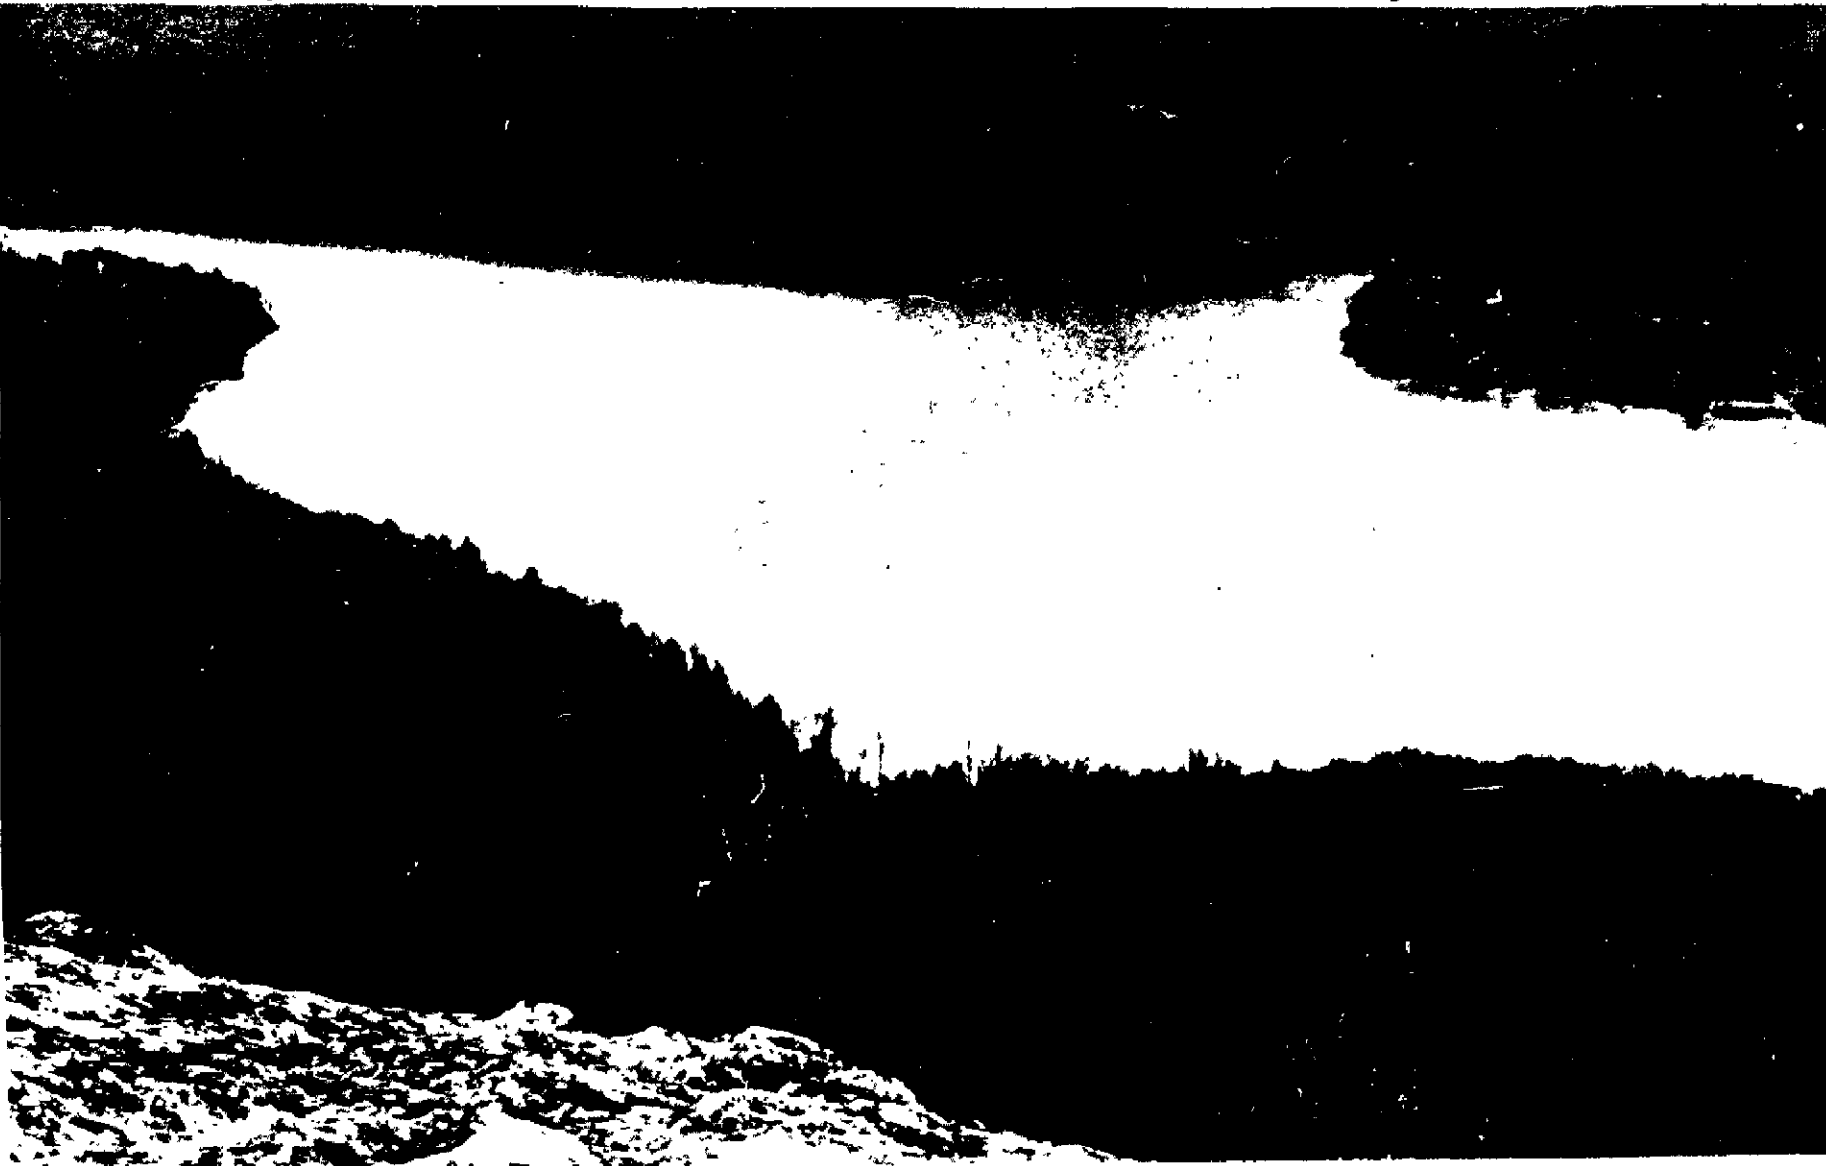

Owners of camp grounds and trailer courts will be asked the kind of services they offer such as number of spaces, access roads, electricity, water supply, rest rooms, tent space, etc.

Hours of service, capacities, and plans for future expansion will also be asked in the questionnaire.

Schneck said that purpose of the survey is to collect all available information into a complete central file so that the area's accommodations resources can be analyzed in terms of the future needs.

Schneck said that the information is not being gathered for promotional purposes but the summary of the facts will guide the committee in future planning.

He did say, however, that the committee does plan to print a listing of all camp See KINZUA Page A2

The man-made lake of Allegheny Reservoir now stretches as far as the eye can see from one of the overlooks at the Rimrock Recreation area. Shimmering in the sunlight yesterday and viewed from 530 feet above the silent waters, it was easy to see why thousands and thousands of tourists are anticipated to the area. The reservoir reached its summer pool level for the first time this week and yesterday was recorded at 1,328.88 above sea level. The lake now extends up river in Pennsylvania, up the Kinzua

Creek arm to Red Bridge and to Bay State Brook in the Red House area west of Salamanca. Incidentally there were quite a few picnickers at Rimrock. (Photo by Mansfield)

Airlines Make Changes Which Affect Area

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — Allegheny and Mohawk airlines, both of which serve the Jamestown area, made the news yesterday with Allegheny offering a 25 per cent discount to vacationers and Mohawk seeking to expand its regional service.

A "Discover America" fare, good anytime, was announced by Allegheny, which said the program is the first of its kind anywhere. If approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board, the "Discover America" program would offer vacationers a 25 per cent discount on any round trip throughout its 13-state system; on a trip at least seven days in length.

Pending CAB approval, the new program would become effective June 1. Airline officials said there would be no blackouts and that the program would be continuous, good seven days a week, including peak holiday travel periods.

Vacationers flying Allegheny under the new program could avail themselves of such tourist attractions as Gettysburg, the Pennsylvania Dutch Country, Lake Erie, Colonial Williamsburg and New England, airline officials said.

Mohawk Airlines has asked permission to expand its regional service by linking Portland, Maine, with Chicago, Ill., via a series of intermediate stops. Attorneys for the Utica-based airline, the largest regional carrier in the nation, have filed an application with the CAB as part of a general investigation into the service between New England and the Great Lakes being conducted by the CAB.

Mohawk indicated it would like to fly from Portland to Chicago with intermediate stops at eight cities, including Albany, Syracuse and Cleveland.

WAHS 'Circus' Opens Tonight

At 8 p.m. today and tomorrow, Warren Area High School will present its 1967 gym show, "The Circus," in the school gym.

The circus theme is apparent in acts such as acrobatics under black light, a grand parade, and a "ballet in space."

There will be cotton candy, popcorn and peanuts to eat, and balloons to wave in the air. At one point in the show, more than 100 performers will take part in an "extravaganza" as they jump, twirl, balance, juggle and spin on all the equipment at once.

The school's cross-country team, state champions, will work as roustabouts, moving equipment and serving as safety men.

The gym will be decorated as a Big Top, with crepe paper converging from the edges of the ceiling to its center.

Shafer Promises Starting Teacher Salary of $6,000

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gov. Shafer pledged last night to increase teachers' salaries and to establish a uniform starting salary of $6,000.

He also said that he would include in his special message on education, which will be delivered to the legislature in two weeks, proposals for graduate programs "that will help teachers...to improve themselves and the education of our children."

Shafer made the remarks in a speech prepared for delivery at a legislative banquet of the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

He told the group that before the end of his administration, "we will periodically increase teachers' salaries, establishing as our ultimate goal a uniform minimum pay scale beginning at $6,000 and rising commensurately with experience and graduate education."

Pennsylvania does not have a statewide minimum starting salary for teachers. It varies from district to district, but the average is $4,500.

In an earlier speech, Dr. Wade Wilson, president of the association, urged teachers to "become a political force in local, state and national politics."

Wilson said teachers should work actively for a political party, be registered to vote, get out the vote, and cast votes in consecutive elections.

He said the federal government should not be allowed to impose its whims upon a group of states. "Dallas told about 400 air pollution experts."

He said that each state has its own problems and that many states do not have, or are not responsible for, pollution.

He said the federal law requiring new exhaust controls on 1968 automobiles is an example of "bureaucratic uniformity" that covers all states regardless of need, as in the case of Alaska.

The federal government should help states to improve their air through interstate compacts and intervene only when one state can prove its pollution is caused by a sister state, Dallas held. "Federal intervention should come only upon the failure of the offending state to act," he said.

Disadvantaged Burglars Lose In School Job

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Burglars entered Chattanooga High School early yesterday.

They battered a hole in a safe — but it was unlocked and empty.

They tore a coin telephone from a wall but neglected to take the coins.

They tore open three soft drink machines but they contained no money.

School officials had just installed a burglar alarm but it wasn't operating yet.

Chicago Teamsters Again Strike Three Trucking Firms

CHICAGO (AP) — Teamsters resumed their strike against three Chicago area trucking firms yesterday after an apparent stalemate in bargaining sessions in Washington between trucking associations and the union.

Jamestown Briefs

Jamestown General Hospital's maternity ward will shut down by June. Expectant mothers will go to WCA hospital instead. If plans announced Wednesday night receive state approval, WCA now has 26 maternity beds and JGH has 16. Plans call for use of the present JGH maternity wing for treatment of mental patients.

Starting pay for teachers in Southwestern Central School District of Chautauqua County will be $7,000 next September. Board members approved the new pay schedule Wednesday night. Present starting pay is $5,400.

Chicago headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters stationed pickets outside the trucking firms employing 1,700 drivers, and ordered company officials to recall their vehicles to the garages. The firms affected are the Willett Transportation Co., Frank Cordray Motor Service, Inc., and the Lasham Cartage Co.

The walkout occurred as union officials, including Chicago leaders, and heads of Chicago area trucking associations concluded talks in Washington that failed to produce agreement on a nationwide pact.

The dispute between 11 driver locals and the industry caused a three-day shutdown April 12. Chicago employers locked out the Teamsters after taken strikes were begun against several of the 4,700 firms.

There was no immediate sign yesterday that the employers had moved toward reimposing their Chicago lockout. Some 52,000 drivers, dock workers and warehouse men were involved in the stoppage, which was suspended at the request of Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

Wirtz stepped into the Chicago dispute in an effort to avoid developments which would reopen a nationwide Teamster wage dispute which had been settled on a tentative basis by negotiators and federal mediators in Washington on Wednesday of last week.

The national dispute had led to a brief truck strike and lockout.

The national settlement pattern, a 4.5 percent wage increase of 50 cents an hour and fringe benefits which brought the cost to about 70 cents an hour.

Chicago unionists, however, stuck to their demands for a 90-cent-an-hour package.

Talks between Chicago negotiators and Wirtz' chief trouble shooters began in Washington Tuesday.

A government source in Washington said yesterday of the talks, "It looks bad." No new discussions were scheduled.

Passenger Receives Only Cuts in Crash

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — One man came out all but unscathed yesterday from a plane crash that killed 126 and seriously injured the other three aboard their Bombay-Cairo flight.

A hospital official said the luckiest survivor, Nikolas Pulver, had "very superficial bruises, like someone who fell off a chair" rather than someone who emerged from one of aviation's worst disasters.

Pulver was the Swiss leader of an Asian holiday tour that ended tragically early yesterday when the chartered plane with 130 aboard crashed into a hillcock while trying to land at Nicosia Airport during a thunderstorm.

The plane, flying from India to Egypt, was diverted to Nicosia by bad weather. Officials said the plane, a Britannia owned by Switzerland's Globe Airways, hit the hillcock two miles from the end of the runway at a point actually lower in altitude than the airport itself.

A report from Frankfurt, Germany, said 75 of the passengers were German and the rest were English, Dutch and Italian. The crew numbered 10.

An official who talked to Pulver quoted him as saying: "We made a first run over the airport and it was too high. The plane then made a second approach but apparently we were too low because suddenly I felt the plane shudder as if a wing had struck something. I was thrown from my seat and don't remember what happened after that."

The other three survivors, all in serious condition, were hostess Veronika Gustin of Basel, Switzerland, and Peter Wimpfret and Miss Christa Blumel, Germans.

Only the tail section from which the survivors were carried was recognizable. The rest of the airliner was scattered for almost a mile.

UAW Aims At Large Wage Hike

By A.F. MAHAN
DETROIT (AP) — Confident "we once again will make history at the bargaining table," United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther urged his 1.4-million-member union yesterday to give "highest priority and greatest emergency" to a substantial wage increase.

Some 3,000 delegates to a UAW goals-setting convention were expected to give rousing approval to his, plus a guaranteed annual income and other proposals outlined by Reuther in his keynote address.

Reuther failed to mention his running squabble with AFL-CIO President George Meany. He may be saying that comment for a later speech when delegates will be asked to authorize the UAW's 26-member executive board to withdraw the union from the federation, if and when it desires.

Reuther has accused the AFL-CIO of permitting the labor movement to "vegetate" under Meany's leadership.

Reuther set no dollars and cents goals in giving top priority to "a substantial wage increase."

When current three-year pacts were negotiated at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler in 1964, the overall package of wage and fringe gains was estimated at 54 to 57 cents hourly.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates the current average hourly straight-time wage for the automotive industry as a whole is $3.36.

Contracts with the Big Three run out next Sept. 5 and bargaining on new ones begins in early July.

Briefly Speaking

Haiphong

Fliers returning to the carriers reported that they had destroyed 80 per cent of both plants. Late last month, pilots of reconnaissance planes said that both Haiphong and Hanoi, a smaller port to the northeast, were completely without lights.

The initial announcement of the raid, issued by Gen. William C. Westmoreland's headquarters in Saigon, said that the closest target had been 11 miles northwest of Haiphong. When pressed, a public information officer said the plant was 1.1 miles from "the center of the business area, but still outside the city limits" on official U.S. maps.

However, Richardson, the pilots who took part in the strike and a number of South Vietnamese who formerly lived in Haiphong all agreed that the plant was within the built up area. And a Navy map of the strike area, prepared but not yet released, clearly indicates this.

The Navy had been preparing for the strikes for several weeks, waiting only for a break in the weather. The northeasterly monsoon, which affects North Vietnam, is now ending bringing relatively clear skies.

The first attacks were carried out about noon, with more than 50 planes involved in each. A second attack was made at about 4 p.m. It was somewhat less successful than the first.

The thermal power plant, so-called because it uses steam turbines to generate electricity is located in the north-western sector of the city, just to the south of the huge cement plant on the Cauam River. It reportedly had a capacity of 10,000 kilowatts before the raid.

The commander of the Kitty Hawk's aircraft wing, Cmdr. Henry Urban of South Bend, Ind., said: "We were told to surgically remove just the power plant itself, and we did so."

The pilots reported having encountered "moderate to heavy flak," and dozens of surface to air missiles, but no enemy fighters. Only one plane from the Kitty Hawk was damaged.

Leroy Kelley, Allegheny National Forest supervisor reported to the Bureau that the Kiasutha development on the reservoir shores is expected to be open by Memorial Day, offering 95 camp sites, 110 picnic areas, a bathing beach and boat launching ramp. Other recreational areas will be completed during the summer, he said.

Robert Peterson, member of the steering committee and county planner, gave the group a comprehensive report on the highway plans for the next few years, including the Youngsville bypass, the Warren-by-pass and a new Route 59 to the Kinzua Dam.

The attractions committee, headed by Charles Williams, reported that it has started its survey of attractions in the area including natural resources, man-made attractions and special events.

Henry LeMeur and Kenneth Stratton reported on the activities of the historical-cultural committee which has two projects under consideration.

Robert C. Dilks, steering committee chairman, welcomed A. L. Rasmussen and Paul E. Harrington as new members of the group.

Charles Tranter, executive director, announced that he would attend a two day tourist-promotion workshop at Allentown sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce.

Asked about Warren bypass plans, Troxell said the plans are in the hands of the Bureau of Public Works. He said the bureau will have to decide which of several sites recommended by the highways department is best. Troxell said, "It might take three weeks to review the plans. I hope not more. It all depends on the bureau's work load."

lieu of $1,000 cash bail or $2,000 property bond set by District Attorney Samuel F. Bonavita and will be arraigned before Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr. at a later date.

The men were advised by Justice Lawson that they could contact an attorney after the charges were read. Both declined.

Police Chief Michael Evan commended both police officers and said the investigation will be continued.

The planning commission will forward a letter to U.S. Senator Hugh Scott to support his bill dealing with regional planning and development. Scott is scheduled to discuss the legislation in June with members of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Regional Planning and Development Commission of which Warren County is a member.

Nine subdivision proposals were scrutinized with final approval accorded lots 11 through 18 of the H.D. Petersen project in Pleasant township.

Preliminary approval went to Hillcrest Development in Cone-wango township; Gerald Archibald in Glade; Giles Schutte, Pleasant; LaMonte Culbertson, Mead; Charles T. Sutton, Morrison Run rd.; Bruce B. Ziegler, Triumph and William Unterreiner, Brokenstraw.

Planners will confer further regarding the Lawrence Werner subdivision plan in Pine Grove, and will make certain stipulations in regard to a proposed gravel pit operation in the Russell area by Ted Fox after determinations by township supervisors and planning commission.

Peterson said the Master Plan for Warren County will be let out for bids the first part of next week and will probably be completed within six to eight weeks.

Five More Counties Blast School Plan

By WILLIAM E. DEIBLER
HARRISBURG (AP) — Five more county school boards protested yesterday the state Board of Education's plan to replace 66 county school superintendents' offices with 25 intermediate service units.

The counties — Columbia, Clinton, Lehigh, Carbon and Tioga — complained to a joint House-Senate Education Committee that the proposed plan gives the board too much authority, and that the suggested units are too large to be workable.

The legislative panel is holding a public hearing on legislation to implement the intermediate unit proposal, the third and final step in a three-year-old program to streamline public school administration.

Wednesday, representatives of Chester, Delaware, Mercer and Westmoreland counties had told the committee that they prefer to stand alone rather than join other counties in forming intermediate units.

The objections filed yesterday followed much the same pattern. The Columbia County board said the plan would take school administration "farther and farther from the people."

"An intermediate board covering a large area would require fewer board members and counties would lose many of the school board representatives who now serve on the county boards," the board said. "This again takes the office farther from local control."

The Carbon County board contended that the board plan "establishes boundaries that in many instances are unworkable, being too large to facilitate communication, coordination and sensitivity to local community differences."

The Tioga County board also objected to the size of the proposed units.

"In the case of Unit 17 (Bradford, Lycoming, Sullivan and Tioga counties) the proposed area is too large and sparsely populated to provide services efficiently," the board said.

The Clinton and Lehigh County boards complained that the plan would give the state board, an appointive body, too much power to establish or change intermediate unit boundaries.

"The plan provides too much centralization of authority, (vested with the State Board of Education) contrary to the American democratic method of granting as much autonomy as possible to local control," the Clinton board said.

The Clinton board proposed that the county superintendents' office, "now operational, could be effective as the new intermediate unit, if its function were changed to meet the new demand of education in Pennsylvania."

The Pennsylvania Association of Chief School Administrators endorsed the proposal, but added that it felt it is important to emphasize the service rather than the regulatory functions of intermediate units.

"Essentially, the Legislative Committee (of the association) is in agreement with most of the provisions of the report," the association said.

If the legislature approves the board's plan, the intermediate units would begin to operate on July 1, 1968.

Scranton Says He's Having Time of Life with Family

By VINCENT P. CAROCCI
HARRISBURG (AP) — Former Gov. William W. Scranton said yesterday he was having the time of his life with his family since leaving the chief executive's office last January.

But, at the same time, just the nature of his conversation in a telephone interview was evidence enough that the former Presidential aspirant had lost none of his interest in world affairs.

"It's just great," Scranton said from Marworth, his family home near the city which was named for his ancestors, when asked how he was enjoying life away from the state capital.

"I'm getting to see and enjoy family again. That's the joy I'm experiencing."

However, the former chief executive who just returned from a month-long vacation in Europe, also pronounced himself disturbed over the intensity of situation along the Israel-Syria border.

"It's a very difficult thing," he said. "It's not in nearly as good a shape as when I was last there in 1961."

But the unsuccessful candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination three years ago came back from Europe with some optimistic reports on Vice President Hubert Humphrey's recent tour there.

"Most of the European diplomats with whom I talked were pleased with the favorable impression the vice president made," Scranton said.

"The riots and outbreaks, of course, marred the public's view of the tour. But the people I talked to felt they in no way affected the success of his talks with European leaders. They particularly thought he made excellent headway in his discussions with the German officials."

Scranton also said that diplomats in Spain and Portugal were impressed with the results of President Johnson's conference with the Latin American leaders last week.

Scranton sounded in excellent spirits, even though he said he had had only a few hours sleep these past two days as his European trip came to an end.

"We had a wonderful time skiing in Switzerland," he said. "Bill (19) and Joe (17) joined us there on their spring vacation. Peter (12) was already with us. We thoroughly enjoyed it."

The former chief executive, who captured a national political reputation for himself while serving in the Pennsylvania State House, indicated he fully intended to continue enjoying himself for the next eight months or so.

"I said when I left office that I planned to take a year off to relax and get to know my family again and I fully intend to hold to that schedule," he remarked. "Mary (his wife) and I are still planning to visit the Far East in the Fall."

Scranton said he was unaware that a nationally syndicated columnist, Drew Pearson, had predicted recently that he would be named within a year to succeed Dean Rusk as Secretary of State.

"I expect Dean Rusk will remain on the job for a long time and I hope he does," the ex-governor, congressman and State Department official replied when asked for his reaction.

Scranton said he planned, beginning next week, to devote two days a week from now until the May 16 Primary Election to join in Gov. Shafer's intensive campaign for the nine constitutional questions on the ballot.

Scranton originally was scheduled to begin his appearances Friday in Philadelphia, but was forced to cancel out because a niece is getting married this weekend.

"I'll start in Johnstown Monday and take it from there," he said.

Scranton added that he has been unable to keep abreast of developments in Pennsylvania because he has been away most of the time since he left office.

However, he added before the conversation concluded: "I will get back into contact shortly."

Pope Paul Praises Experts Aiding World Food Supply

By BENNET M. BOLTON
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI praised yesterday the experts who try to "multiply bread on the table of the great human family," issuing the second Vatican appeal in three days for solving the hunger problem of overpopulation through more food output.

The pontiff addressed at an audience delegates from 24 nations of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization's world food program's intergovernmental committee.

He donated $10,000 to the program, which gives food as aid for economic development projects in emerging nations.

The pontiff said the Roman Catholic Church's job was not to offer technical solutions for reforming the structures of modern society but to "stimulate consciences" toward such reform.

"It is enough to show how much the Church rejoices in seeing men of heart, aware of their responsibilities, dedicate themselves as you have to multiply bread on the table of the great human family," he said.

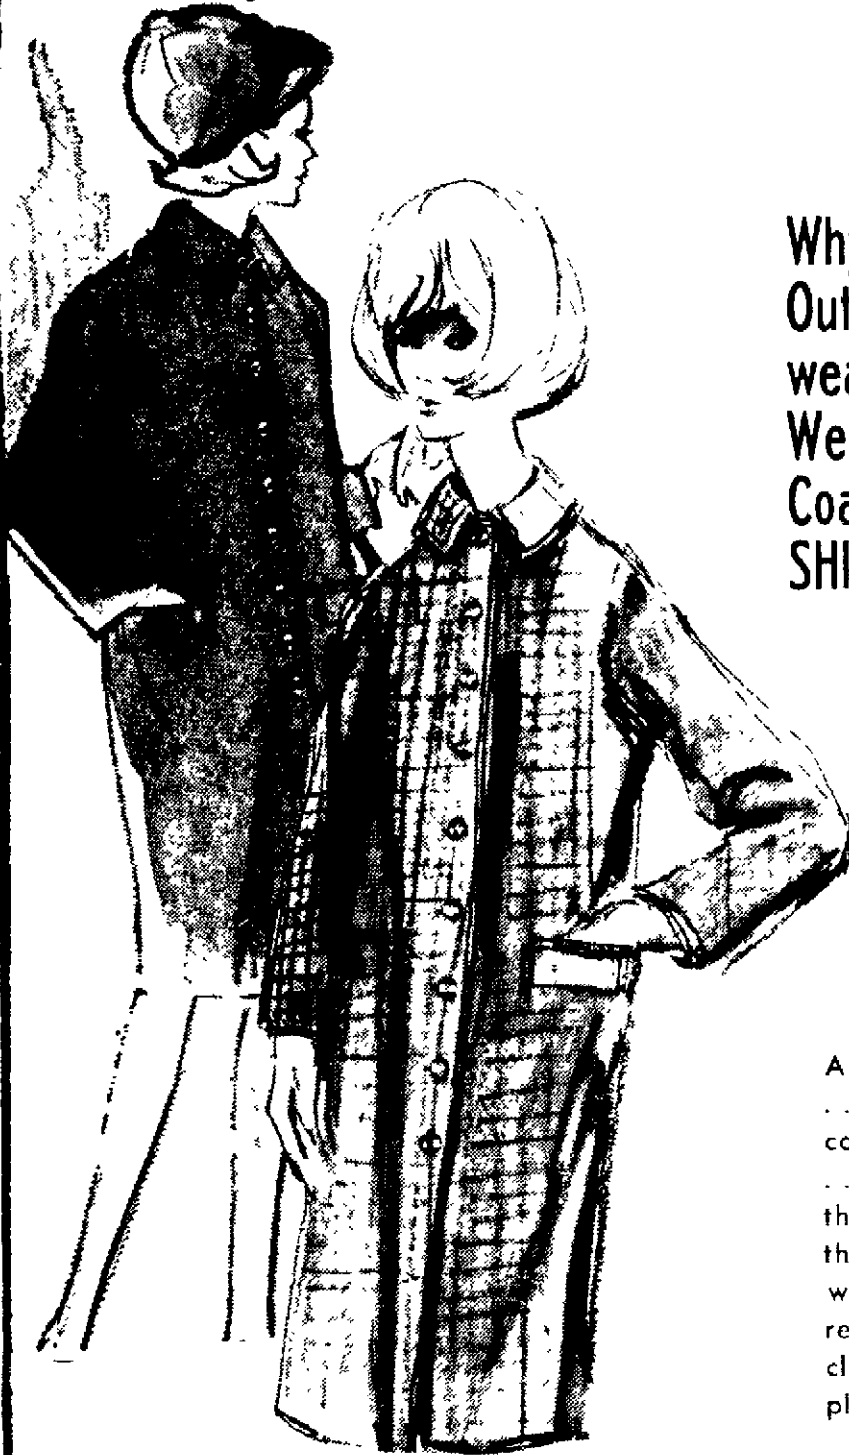

The Pope's words were another reaffirmation of his position that the world population explosion and resultant hunger should be handled by producing food in greater quantity.

The Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano stressed that view in a major editorial Tuesday and said Catholicism's ban against contraception remained valid.

Pope Paul told the delegates that in the eyes of his Church economic growth was not enough in itself.

"It must be fully humane and therefore concern itself with global development and balance — social, moral and spiritual as well as material — of persons and peoples," he said.

Let's Get Together

The Citizens Advisory Committee plays an important role in urban renewal, and Warren can be proud that the men and women who serve on this group are conscious of the importance of their role in making a good place to live an even better community.

But it occurs to us that, in their efforts to make it known that the CAC will not be a "rubber-stamp" committee, seven members of the group acted hastily in making a resolution that calls for the delay of codes necessary to our future development.

Warren's urban renewal program has bogged down on numerous occasions in the many months it has been in planning. All that stands before it now is recertification of the workable program and approval of the application for Part II of the Liberty Street Project. The workable program and the Part II application can be submitted in the next few months as a package.

If the necessary codes—building, housing, and electrical—are approved by council, approval by Housing and Urban Development is but a letter away, and urban renewal is no longer just conversation. It will be a very real thing.

The ordinances and codes are based on national standards, as was brought out at the April 10 meeting of borough council—a meeting that had only the press as an audience.

These ordinances are admittedly technical and parts of them do not apply to Warren's particular needs.

But the proposal is not to pass them on a "temporary" basis which, like taxes, could tend to become permanent. The proposal, instead, is to pass them "by reference."

The words "by reference" are the key to the matter.

This means that the original codes would be adopted with certain modifications—modifications which later can be incorporated in an adopted ordinance. In short, the codes can be studied further after they are passed, with the test being adapted, to meet this borough's specific needs. Other changes can be made as necessary.

The Citizens Advisory Committee, which will have much to do with the success or failure of the urban renewal program, will have ample opportunity to study codes and ordinances before final action is taken. But to jeopardize the entire program by holding up the codes for perhaps months is an action we cannot afford—particularly when it seems unnecessary.

It would be far simpler—and more beneficial to the community—for the committee members to confer with borough and Redevelopment Authority officials at the earliest opportunity.

This is not a time for friction. This is a time for action. There is a world of difference.

Potatoes on the Reservation

(c) N. Y. Times News Service ISLETA, N. M. — Some may think the world is in flames, but at this dusty pueblo the immediate problem for the Isleta Tribal Council is 10,000 acres of potatoes.

The Isletas have the 10,000 acres and the labor to work it and the J. R. Simplot Company of Idaho has the technology, the market, the seed, the fertilizer and the money. Simplot, a huge commercial farming company, has run out of labor and land in Idaho and some of the Isletas have realized recently that their 210,000-acre reservation running the rich bottom land of the Rio Grande River could be put to better use than grazing the hundred-odd head of cattle now inhabiting it.

So Simplot is offering a 20-year lease that ultimately could bring the tribe $30,000 a year, plus employment for about 200 Isletas that might mean $1-million in wages during the 20 years, plus land improvements—wells and irrigation, for instance—worth perhaps another $2-million.

These figures suggest the proportions to which commercial farming has grown in the west, and they are ready indeed when presented to an Indian tribe with no oil or uranium potential on its hereditary lands. But Gov. John D. Zuni of the Isletas and the other council members were in no mood here the other night to sell Manhattan Island all over again.

No doubt something in their bones and blood made them doubtful of white men bearing gifts—although there is no reason to suspect the integrity of Simplot. Some of the tribe's elders own those grazing cattle, know no other way of life, and are suspicious of what a big agricultural development will do to their range land. More modern Isletas think that if development is coming it ought to be industrial.

The Isletas are already running a pickle factory based on their own cucumber production, for instance, and while it is a going business it is not yet producing riches for the tribe—nothing like the uranium mines, ski slopes and other enterprises now being run by other Indian tribes in New Mexico.

Thus, Andy Abeta, a former Isleta governor who gained brief fame when he threw a Catholic priest bodily off the reservation for interfering with tribal rituals, was only half in jest when he said: "I much prefer industrial development, farming is too much like work."

Abeta, a husky, grinning, gap-toothed man with close-clipped hair, easily dominated the council meeting in the Isleta schoolhouse. Gov. Zuni, an elderly man with a lined, sad face, sat quietly in a faded, plaid work shirt; other council members—one looking like a movie extra with his hair in a queue—most soberly dressed in dark suits and heavy shoes debated the proposition in their variant of the Navajo tongue while the Simplot representatives uneasily awaited the outcome. In another room two Isleta women kept a coffee pot steaming and store-bought cookies ready for a break in the bargaining.

How soon would Simplot develop the land, since the full rent would be paid only on developed acreage? When would the processing shed, providing all that employment, be built? "I'm not about to tie up that property for 10 cents an acre when something better might come along next year," Abeta said.

JIM BISHOP

And Then There Were Nine

The big aluminum bird rolled down the concrete at Miami and spread its wings to a pale afternoon sky. The dream ended at once. Nine Frechettes were aboard. They were homeward bound. For two weeks, as my wife whispered: we had wall-to-wall kids.

Bishop

No one believes the Charles Frechette family at first sight. People look casually, disinterestedly, then they swing back and stare, and some just shake their heads.

There are seven of them, eight years of age down to zero, and my daughter Virginia Lee talks of having two more boys.

The doctor who delivered the first seven, Albert Higdon, is a young man, but he suddenly retired and went west. He could be working on a new pill. Maybe he's re-rounding the old one.

There is no joy to match the Frechettes. The parents and children live on an energetic level of kissing, laughing and crying. When they arrived a couple of weeks ago, I slipped coffee one morning and had the feeling that a fake movie scene was being enacted in the living room.

Clipper, who is Charles Albert, was on the floor apparently trying to kiss our dog Rocky and take him apart. Amy, who is 11 months of age, stood in a playpen in a bonnet and flouncy bathing suit, yipping with all six teeth wide open, happy to be the center of the bedlam.

Jim, 7, asked if he could take his fishing pole to the Aquarium and, in swinging to listen to his father, missed removing Chris's right eye with the end of the pole. Robin, one of the identical blonde twins, crouched over the comics on the floor, as her parents walked back and forth over the newspaper. Kevin, the handsome, raced a tin automobile under Pamela's feet and she did a ballet split, picked herself up, and said: "Can I have some candy?"

You've heard of two sittings for dinner? Ever try three? Karen, our beautiful 14-year-old, was baby-sitter at night. She fed them, bathed them, changed Amy, marched them off to bed on time, and found time for her homework. She is Amy's godmother, so she felt she had no right to gag change these diapers.

Just before the Frechettes arrived, our next door neighbor, Wally Lehmann, went home to visit his grandchildren. "Here are the keys," he said. "Let Charlie and Ginny use my house. Better take the keys to the car, too. You'll be needing it." I asked him if he had blown his cool, or whatever it is the teen-agers say.

The Lehmanns had an entire brand-new house, unmarred. Keeping it unmarred required parental vigilance and some desperate shouting. Total damage: one ashtray. The kids called Kelly "Grandma" which pleased my wife. Chipper, who is accustomed to being accused of naughty deportment, came in from the patio one day and said: "Grandma, I did not drink up all your swimming pool."

She checked first, before absolving him. The children play hard, eat well and sleep deep. At night, we took the young parents on the rounds of the gay spots. At home, they reserve the Carleton Theatre in Red Bank, N.J., for anniversaries. So we went to the Jai-alai games, to Gulfstream race track, and even to see Doctor Zhivago, making the fifth time for me.

Charlie and I played golf at the Diplomat, took the kids on small boating trips (you keep counting heads all the way), to the Crandon Park Zoo, on pop-sicle excursions to the supermarket, and watched them sit on the lawn in a circle as Kathy, our 12-year-old, kept them spell-bound with stories.

Best of all was dinner at a place called The Casino, in Fort Lauderdale. It's a new place, luxuriously cozy with pale Brussels drapes and red velvet. An assortment of violonists played dreamy music, wandering between tables as the diners slipped drinks and ate rich dinners. The songs were so sentimental that I noticed Charlie eating one-handed, while holding Ginny's hand under the table.

I said nothing, but two more boys will make six boys and three girls. At breakfast the next morning, I sat with my hair in my eyes, an old bathrobe around me, trying to focus on the cup of coffee, Chris, who is three, sneaked up and climbed on a nearby chair.

"Popop," he said gravely, "do you dress yourself?" . . .

JACK ANDERSON

Caine Mutiny Revisited

WASHINGTON — The Navy is trying to suppress the fantastic story of a real-life Caine Mutiny, closely following the plot of the celebrated Herman Wouk novel. This one happened not in World War II but aboard a radar picket destroyer on combat duty off Vietnam.

The junior officers even kept a "Captain's Madness Log," as in the "Caine Mutiny," to use as evidence against their commanding officer. He is Lt. Cmdr. Marcus Aurelius Arnheiter and the "mutiny" took place aboard the U.S.S. Vance.

The investigative report shows clearly, however, that Arnheiter was no Captain Queeg.

Here is the story the Navy is trying to keep quiet: A group of young officers had been operating the U.S.S. Vance more like a yacht than a warship until Arnheiter took command a few days before Christmas, 1955. At sea, they enjoyed a leisurely life, including movies every afternoon. At anchor, they went joyriding and water skiing in an outboard motorboat they had acquired ashore.

Discipline aboard the Vance was so relaxed that an enlisted crewman complained to his Congressman: "No one knows or cares what you are doing. You get no recognition for keeping your gear up. In fact, no one knows whether it is working or not. The officers don't check us; they don't look at our logs. They don't inspect our gear or our spaces."

This letter got back to Rear Adm. Walter H. Baumberger, then commander of the Cruiser Destroyer Force in the Pacific, who cited it in a notice to all his ships. Without mentioning names, he wrote: "The attached letter was recently received via a Congressman . . . (it) points up the misuse of a specific individual and states quite eloquently the frustrations experienced by a number of our young bluejackets. It is my fervent hope that such a situation does not now exist in any of our ships."

To restore combat efficiency aboard the Vance, Arnheiter began cracking down. This spoiled the fun of his junior officers, who chafed under the new discipline.

Shortly after Arnheiter became skipper, the ship was ordered to the war zone. Her mission was to patrol the coast, intercept the smuggling of Communist contraband and bombard enemy targets on shore.

He mounted a .30-caliber machinegun on the outboard runabout, trained the ship's crew in the use of the big three-inch guns and taught them how to use rifles in case they should have to repel boarders. Then he began patrolling close to the shore, searching the coves and inlets for suspicious junks. He also requested spotter planes to point out shore targets for the ship's big guns.

The junior officers complained that he was taking unnecessary risks and that they could patrol by radar beyond the barrier reef 20 miles out.

Soon they began to plot against Arnheiter. Once he saw in the ward room an open copy of Herman Wouk's "Caine Mutiny Court Martial," the stage version of the original novel.

Meanwhile, three subordinates—Lt. Ray Hardy, the executive officer; Lt. (J. G.) William Generous, the operations officer; and Ensign Louis Belmonte—were compiling a long list of petty grievances against Arnheiter, entered by Belmonte in the "Captain's Madness Log."

The trouble really began when Generous, a Catholic, complained in a letter to a priest, Lt. Richard Osterman, that Arnheiter was compelling all hands to attend Protestant services on the ship's fantail.

"Three times now," the lieutenant wrote, "the crew has been ordered aft . . . for these euphemistic church calls . . . I cannot accept illegality and infringement of my Constitutional rights. I seek relief from this burden, but I do so anonymously, once again for the sake of my family. Is there something that you can do?"

Unknown to Arnheiter, Chaplain Osterman registered a complaint with higher authorities. Ensign Belmonte, the lay Catholic leader on board, pressed the charges in complaints to other chaplains.

Investigation developed that the skipper, an Episcopalian, had not been holding Protestant services. Invocations and benedictions were offered, but were taken from the Navy's own booklet of "Prayers at Sea." He had held these services in order to instill patriotism and prepare his men spiritually for combat.

One of Generous's specific complaints was that the crew had been called on to sing all four verses of "America," and that the reference in the fourth verse to "Our fathers' God to Thee, author of liberty," had Protestant connotations.

When the charges eventually were investigated, it was found that although the nature of the initial lectures did have religious overtones, the tenor of the program subsequently changed to conform with the spirit of General Order 21 to which objection could not reasonably be raised.

The other charges were even more petty, including the complaint that Arnheiter had declared candy "unfit for consumption" in order to give it to hungry Vietnamese children.

Prior to these findings, however, Arnheiter was abruptly removed from his command. He was neither informed of the charges against him nor given an opportunity to reply. The admirals acted precipitously out of concern for the ship's morale in a war zone.

But having made their decision, they refused to back down—even after investigation proved the charges to be frivolous.

Thus Arnheiter was cashiered, in effect, for bringing discipline to his ship and pressing the war too vigorously.

JOSEPH ALSOP

Vietnam's Battle of The Bulge

WASHINGTON — We are due for another round of the blues about the Vietnamese war because the Hanoi war planners are maximizing their effort at the northern tip of South Vietnam. But the right way to judge this new development is to recall the Battle of the Bulge in the second great war.

Alsop

In the Battle of the Bulge the Germans gambled just about all their remaining resources, precisely because the war was going very badly for them and any sacrifice was justified to try to reverse the trend. They lost their gamble, and after that their road went swiftly downward.

In the same fashion the Hanoi war planners are obviously going to gamble very high in I Corps—the marine area of responsibility—because the war has been going very badly for them in II and III Corps—the more strategically significant corps areas stretching from the fringe of the delta to the northern border of the rich provinces of Binh Dinh.

In these two corps areas the enemy's big units have been so repeatedly defeated that the great majority are at best no more than marginally combat-effective. A good many of the big units are wholly unfit for combat. And in II and III Corps, too, the vast, formerly secure base areas in the jungles and mountains have been methodically worked over so that the more important have become painfully insecure.

From Hanoi's viewpoint, the gravest single feature of this darkening picture has been the ever-mounting rate of attrition. Throughout Vietnam in March the grisly body counts of enemy troops killed in action reached a new high above 10,000. The enemy's real losses, contrary to widespread supposition, were quite certainly far greater than the body counts.

While the enemy's attrition rate has mounted in this manner, local VC recruitment in South Vietnam has sharply declined. Outside the delta—IV Corps—local recruitment is now hardly more than sufficient to sustain the Viet Cong's guerrilla infrastructure. Above the delta the big units now have to depend almost entirely on North Vietnamese replacements, and the flow of infiltrators from North Vietnam has been nowhere near big enough to replace the big units' losses, especially in II and III Corps.

In these difficult circumstances the Hanoi war planners have begun to concentrate all their resources against I Corps. In these five most northerly provinces the marines are spread pretty thin, and here, too, the distances from North Vietnam are very much shorter and infiltration of men and supplies is, therefore, that much easier.

Hence, the enemy's big units in I Corps are now getting the lion's share of men and supplies coming from North Vietnam. In addition the Hanoi war planners seem to be preparing to invade I Corps with a considerable part of the main North Vietnamese army.

Since last summer the North Vietnamese 324B Division has repeatedly attempted to invade Quang Tri Province across the misnamed demilitarized zone, and it has been repeatedly hurled back by the marines with very heavy losses. There are signs now, however, that something much bigger in scale may be attempted, involving the North Vietnamese 65th and 341st Divisions as well as the 324B Division and perhaps one other.

Thus, the official order of battle, showing enemy units or troops may have to contend with, has just been increased by three divisions. And this rearrangement of the order of battle in turn explains the seeming anomaly of the Pentagon stories about increasing enemy troop strength at a time when enemy losses have reached a record level. Enemy troop strength is, in fact, being counted in a new way.

An unchanged situation in IV Corps, the delta; grave erosion of the enemy in II and III Corps, the most important part of the country; a greatly intensified enemy effort in the most northerly provinces, I Corps; such are the main features of the existing situation. The problems this situation poses for Washington must be examined in a subsequent report.

Meanwhile, however, there can be little doubt that the analogy with the Battle of the Bulge gives the best insight into the enemy's problems and purposes. Everything is now to be gambled to reverse the war's unfavorable trend by achieving a Dien Bien Phu-like success against American troops in I Corps.

The Season for Swindlers

We are now entering the peak "termite season" during which thousands of unlucky homeowners from coast to coast will be faced with the tedious and expensive task of ridding their homes of these voracious pests.

We are now also entering the peak season for the termite swindler who, claiming to be an expert in termite control, will be hard-selling his worthless services at exorbitant prices to the gullible among us.

Who are the termite swindlers? How do they operate? How can you protect yourself and your home against them?

Here is a typical illustration how these gypsies work today: A truck pulls into your driveway and a man, introducing himself as a "termite inspector," informs you that a termite problem has cropped up in your neighborhood. He offers to "inspect" your home—free—to see whether termites have reached its underpinnings. He disappears into your basement, later emerges with the frightening news that your own house has become infested. As proof, he displays a jar of live termites he says he has found downstairs.

The "inspector" may tell you that you are lucky because your termite problem has been discovered "in the nick of time" and he urges you to act immediately, "before your house collapses." He then summons a couple of men from his truck, and tells them to bring a tank full of insecticide. You will pay only for the number of gallons actually sprayed in your cellar and there will be a 10-year guarantee on the job. A little later, the men return to inform you that the job took 85 gallons at $4 a gallon—or $340.

But here are the key points. There is no such occupation as "termite inspector" (or, in some cases "government termite inspector"). There may not be a single termite in your home to begin with. Even if there are, the chemical spray used by the termite gypsies is probably worthless because termites live as far as 10 or more feet underground. Reputable exterminators normally do not guarantee a single termite control job for as long as 10 years.

The hard facts about termites and termite control are these. Termites are a very real menace in virtually every part of the U. S. They feed primarily on wood, paper and leather. They can indeed do extensive damage to the timbers and other structural members supporting your house.

Ridding a house of termites may involve injection of poisonous chemicals, under pressure, into the ground around infested areas and perhaps under basement floors. Termite control also may involve excavation around the foundation and the construction of mechanical barriers to block entry by termites around the house or under the basement. Sometimes, badly infested beams must be replaced as well.

The cost to you of termite control is generally based on the number of linear feet treated and the amount of excavation and reconstruction needed. It is not unusual for a legitimate termite control job to cost hundreds of dollars.

Typically, the legitimate termite exterminator will guarantee his work, usually for three or more years. But the guarantees may not hold if you make additions to the house, such as a new wing or a new porch—unless you termite-proof these, too.

Here are your key guides to avoiding termite gypsies:

+ If you think you have a termite problem, call one or more reputable exterminating firms, ask for expert opinions and estimates, investigate their references of work done in other homes.

+ If you have any doubt about the firm's reputation or control techniques, check with your Better Business Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, County Agricultural Agent or State Agricultural College.

+ Beware of door-to-door termite "experts"—particularly those who use scare tactics, rush you into employing their services or quote you a price based on the number of gallons of chemicals used (usually a relatively small part of the cost).

+ Take your time in signing up for any termite control services. Termites work very slowly and even if they have invaded your house, you can afford to take weeks or months to decide on a course of action.

Weapon Crackdown Promised by School

MCCLELLANDTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Officials of German Twp. High School promised parents and civil rights leaders yesterday they will crack down on pupils carrying weapons in an effort to stem a wave of fear which has swept through this Fayette County mining community in the wake of the fatal stabbing of a pupil.

Stuart Shannonhouse of the state Human Relations Commission said the tension was the result of "festered sores of prejudice" in the community.

High School Principal Lloyd Wright reported the school's normal enrollment of 700 has been down by about half since Charles Pratt, 14, a Negro, was stabbed to death in a school hallway Monday.

Marvin Franks, 15, a white boy, was arrested on a murder charge.

John Homistek was one of 100 parents who attended a meeting yesterday at the high school.

He said his son had been hit in the jaw and his life threatened. "My boy's home today on the advice of his teacher," he said.

Wright showed the meeting a pile of about a dozen switch-blade knives and starter's pistols he said were confiscated from pupils.

State police patrols have been keeping a watch on the high school since the stabbing.

Parents said cars of white youngsters had been prowling the predominantly Negro community of nearby Edenborn making threats.

Brookville Nurses' Strike April 27

BROOKVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Nurses at Brookville Hospital have voted to strike April 27 because of the administration's refusal to recognize the Pennsylvania Nurses' Association as their bargaining agent, it was learned yesterday.

The 35 full-time and 20 part-time nurses voted Tuesday night. The vote was not made public.

Brookville is a 100-bed hospital with about 80 patients.

Insurance Company Cited

HARRISBURG (AP) — Insurance Commissioner David O. Maxwell complained in Commonwealth Court yesterday that officers of the C. M. Clark Insurance Agency, Inc., Philadelphia, refused to allow department examiners to inspect its books.

Maxwell asked the court in a petition to order the agency to permit the examination and enjoin the officers from "altering, removing or destroying" any of the company's books, or from "withdrawing . . . any funds" from its bank account.

The insurance commissioner said the action resulted from a preliminary investigation which showed a close link between the operations of the Clark Agency and Safeguard Mutual Insurance Co., also of Philadelphia.

Maxwell suspended Safeguard from doing business last April 12 after an examination showed the firm to be "financially unstable." He subsequently asked for a liquidator to be appointed by the court.

Maxwell said his initial inquiry revealed that there was an interlocking of directors between Safeguard and the Clark Agency.

He said he also found that funds from Safeguard "improperly were paid into" the Clark Agency; premium payments to

NATO Plans Communications Satellite System for Crises

BY WILLIAM BEECHER
(c) N.Y. Times News Service

BRUSSELS — Modern technology is coming to the aid of the Atlantic alliance in its quest for a method of fast, reliable communications in a crisis.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is seriously considering establishment of its own satellite communications system to enable such currently unheard of capability as simultaneous, alliance-wide consultation of heads of government during a period of imminent threat.

And if such satellite-assisted consultation should lead to a decision to go to war, the system, which would be tied in with America's own military satellite net, then could be employed to order major troop movements and even to help direct the use of tactical nuclear weapons, if it should come to that NATO sources say.

Two communications satellites would be provided by the U.S., which also would put them into orbit.

Sources say the satellites, together with numerous ground terminals, would cost some $45 million. The cost would be shared by the members of the alliance.

There is still an open question whether France would want, or would be permitted to participate, sources say.

While France has withdrawn her forces from Integrated NATO command, she still participates in certain limited alliance activities, such as the early warning system for air defense. Some sources say France would like to take part in the satellite communications. Others insist France has not made clear her interest.

While formal NATO approval of the project has not yet been made, officials here and in Paris say it is expected in a matter of weeks.

The move to twentieth century communications started late last year when the U.S. proposed NATO a three-phase program.

The first, which NATO quickly agreed on, involved the purchase for less than $1 million of two ground terminals. One is located at Casteau, Belgium, NATO's new military headquarters, the other in Naples, home of its southern command. The pair of terminals, slated to go operational in July, will give NATO communicators practical experience with such a system, bouncing messages off existing American military satellites.

Phase two of the program involves two satellites to be put in orbit over the Atlantic at a height sufficient to synchronize their orbits with the rotation of the world, in effect parking them in fixed position vis-a-vis ground stations in Western Europe and the U.S.

Scrambled or otherwise encrypted voice or teletype messages could then be directed toward either of the satellites and relayed to any ground terminals in the net. The second satellite could either provide additional traffic capability or be available should something happen to its mate.

An American official who is close to the program said that should approval be granted for a go ahead, as expected, the system could be functioning by the end of next year.

Germany Plans Biggest, Impressive State Funeral

By PETER REHAK
BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany prepared yesterday the biggest and most impressive state funeral in a generation for Konrad Adenauer, its first chancellor and a founding spirit of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The body of Adenauer, who died Wednesday at the age of 91, lay at his home in Rhoeudorf, where members of his family mourned privately. Funeral services will be Tuesday.

Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger went to pay his respects early in the day but other officials and the public were kept away.

Official Bonn made ready for four days of ceremonies that will precede Adenauer's burial in a family plot at Rhoeudorf, the village on the Rhine where Adenauer lived since before World War II.

It will be the largest funeral since President Paul von Hindenburg was buried in Berlin in 1934.

President Johnson, President Charles de Gaulle of France and Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain will head the list of political leaders who plan to come to pay their respects.

It will be first such gathering of world leaders since the funeral of President John F. Kennedy in November of 1963. Johnson and De Gaulle met for the last time on that occasion.

De Gaulle and Wilson attended the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill in 1965 but Johnson, III at the time, was absent.

"Bringing together the leaders of the alliance may be Adenauer's last contribution to Western unity," said one top West German official.

Congressman Robbed, Still Continues Trip to Bimini

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Detroit congressman Charles C. Diggs Jr., outwardly untroubled about being robbed in a downtown bar—flew to Bimini with Adam Clayton Powell's lawyer yesterday but refused to say if he planned to see the Harlem congressman.

Miami Police Lt. Roy N. Eddy said his men had no luck in catching the strongarm robber who took Diggs' $200 gold watch, a one-carat diamond ring worth $1,000 and a wallet with $150 cash.

Diggs told police he was robbed in the doorway of the Reno Bar at 3:30 a.m. yesterday by "a big man, a Negro," with whom he had shaken hands.

Lt. Eddy said Diggs was killing time between flights when he visited the bar in the Central Negro District.

"He saw it was a joint and left without being served," Eddy said.

"He put his hand out as if to shake my hand or something like that," Diggs told newsmen. He said he did "the political thing" and offered his right hand.

"He grabbed my wrist and pulled the watch off. Then he took the ring off the ring finger of my left hand and without saying anything he put his hand in my pants pocket and took the money," Diggs said.

Powell has remained on the tiny British island in the Bahamas since he was excluded from the 90th Congress.

Diggs, 44, also a Negro and a Democrat, voted against the amendment which denied Powell his seat.

SEATO Ministers Endorse U.S. Reciprocal Policy in Vietnam War

By SPENCER DAVIS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The SEATO Foreign Ministers Council — minus France and with Pakistan silent — declared yesterday that any reduction in allied fighting in Vietnam would have to be matched by a similar scaledown of enemy forces.

In a communique marking the end of the 12th council meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, the six foreign ministers thus strongly endorsed the U.S. policy of requiring some reciprocal action from Hanoi before halting the bombing of North Vietnam.

Representatives of Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand, Britain and the United States "reaffirmed their determination to maintain, and where possible to increase, their efforts in support of Vietnam in accordance with their respective constitutional" procedures, the communique said.

It left the door open for any decisions that might later be made to step up the number of troops sent to assist South Vietnam.

With only a small shifting of gears, the SEATO meeting which ended at midday moved into a second conference of the seven nations contributing troops to the defense of Vietnam.

Britain and Pakistan were out of the lineup for the troop contributors, but South Korea and South Vietnam were full participants. The others included Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Thailand.

HAS TV APPEARANCE, SPEECHES

Wallace Opens Campaign This Weekend

By REX THOMAS MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Gov. George C. Wal-lace breaks out of the starting blocks this weekend in an ap-parent trial run for another presidential campaign.

A network television appear-ance and a four-day speaking tour through New England and the Midwest will give him once again a form for his philosophy of segregation, states rights and "constitutional government."

Fresh on his mind, and on the minds of his listeners, will be a threatened new federal-state confrontation over court-or-dered integration of all Ala-bama schools.

His wife, Lurleen, the present governor, has asked the state legislature to transfer into her hands administrative control over the schools as one step in a defiant plan to resist the court mandates.

Wallace, as his wife's chief adviser, has become involved also in a dispute over academic freedom on the college cam-puses in Alabama.

It began with legislative criti-cism of a student publication at the University of Alabama and Wallace's endorsement of the critical remarks, and led ulti-mately to a threat from Frank A. Rose, university president, to resign rather than submit to political pressure.

Two of the former governor's speaking appearances in the coming week will be on college campuses, and his audiences may hear this version of the "free speech" controversy.

Wallace's first stop in the week-long tour is in Washington as guest on NBC's "Meet the Press" show Sunday.

The former governor speaks at Syracuse University next Wednesday night; at Pitts-burgh, Pa., the following night; Cleveland, Ohio, Friday night and at a Parents' Day meeting at Rose Polytechnic Institute in Terre Haute, Ind., on Saturday.

U.S. Receives 'Green Light' on USSR Talks

By RICHARD E. MOONEY (c) N. Y. Times News Service PARIS—American officials said yesterday they have re-ceived "a green light" from the Atlantic allies to resume negotiations with Moscow for a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons, and that the talks will be reopened soon.

A German official, reflecting the fact that his and some other governments still object to some fundamental aspects of the proposed treaty, said, "it looks more like a yellow light to us."

These comments followed a two-hour meeting of the permanent council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization where, for the past 11 weeks, the U.S. has been trying to get allied agreement on the treaty draft worked out with the So-viets late last year. In re-sponse to objections that have been raised, the U.S. has re-vised some provisions of the draft.

The safeguard clause, on in-ternational inspection to cer-tify that the treaty is being observed, "has been rewritten completely," a U. S. official said. It is understood that wording has also been added that would provide for review of the treaty after a specified number of years, and promis-ing that the nuclear powers will make serious efforts for an outright disarmament agree-ment in the meanwhile.

Notwithstanding the se changes, West Germany and Italy still have major reserva-tions and some other western powers are not yet wholly con-vinced. The Soviet Union, not to mention other interested countries, has not yet been consulted on the changes.

William C. Foster, chief U.S. disarmament negotiator, will consult with India's negotiator in Geneva today, and it is ex-pected that talks with the Soviets will be resumed next week. In addition, consultations with the NATO countries are to con-tinue as the talks progress.

The U.S. objective is to reach agreement on all fundamen-tal points with Moscow by May 9, the scheduled reopening date for the 17-nation disarmament con-ference in Geneva, for further negotiation among the larger number of countries represent-ed there.

U.S. officials feel they have the support of most NATO coun-tries now—excepting France, which refuses to sign any such treaty. Some slight further rewording of the inspection clause is expected.

The problem with the inspec-tion clause is to devise an arrangement for worldwide in-spection by the International Atomic Energy Agency under the treaty without disrupting Euratom—the atomic associa-tion of the six European com-mon market countries.

Another basic worry is that the treaty might lead to indus-trial espionage, by international inspectors from unfriendly countries. Germany, Italy and Japan have also insisted on as-surances that the treaty will not thwart development of their nu-clear industry.

The final rewording of the safeguard clause is expected within a few days. U.S. of-ficials hope for a final treaty before the next session of the U.N. assembly in September.

Capote's Story on Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Broadcasting Co.'s production of Truman Capote's story, "A Christmas Memory", was honored today with a George Foster Peabody Award as one of the "very finest TV hours of 1966" in the entertain-ment field.

Cited in the field of broadcast news were Harry Reasoner of the Columbia Broadcasting Sys-tem, honored for his television essays, and Edwin Newman of the National Broadcasting Co., who received the Radio News Award for his commentaries.

The 27th annual awards were presented by Dean John E. Drewry of the University of Georgia's Henry W. Grady School of Journalism at a luncheon of the broadcast pioneers.

The school, along with the Pea-body board, administers the awards. The awards in the field of tel-evision education were shared by the "National Geographic Specials" on CBS and "Ameri-can White Paper: Organized Crime in the United States" on NBC.

The Peabody board also made a special award to the National Educational Television network and its producing stations "for swimming valiantly against the current which seems to be sweeping TV toward mediocri-ty."

Tom John, art director and set designer for the highly ac-claimed CBS production of Ar-thur Miller's "Death of a Sales-man", also was honored with a special award for his work on that show and two others—the Barbra Streisand special, "Col-or me Barbra", and "The Strol-ler" Twenties.

For Sale Sign Put On Dethroned NBA Champs

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, whose eight-year reign as National Basketball Association champions was ended last week by Philadelphia, were put up for sale yesterday "at the proper price to the proper people."

Marvin Kratter, the club's board chairman, actually put out a financial prospectus as he told a news conference the Celtics "are not on the market as such but we will consider offers."

Kratter said there have been offers from a group headed by Celtics President Jack Waldron and General Manager Red Auerbach and other unidentified

NBA Fights Roster Raids by New Loop

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — National Basketball Association clubs will fight in the courts to resist efforts of the new professional league to raid their rosters.

President Walter Kennedy of the NBA said yesterday, "Each of the owners has advised me that they intend to pursue the matter of players breaching contracts through the proper legal channels."

Commenting on efforts by the New York club of the American Basketball Association to acquire Baltimore's Leroy Ellis and the Dallas move to get Jim Barnes of Los Angeles, Kennedy said:

"Baltimore already has started legal proceedings against Ellis, the New York club and the ABA for breach of contract."

"The Los Angeles management has notified me it intends to do the same if, in fact, Jim Barnes has signed with Dallas."

Kennedy, in San Francisco for the NBA playoffs, explained, "A player contract is between the club and player and therefore, any legal action would be taken by the club involved and not by the association itself."

He added, "There definitely should be court action and we'll pursue it to the fullest."

"The ABA at its recent league meeting in Oakland left no doubt it plans all-out action to induce established professional players to join its league."

Kennedy pointed out that NBA contracts are from Sept. 1 to Sept. 1 annually and asserted they include an option to provide rights to services the following year.

San Diego, one of the two new entries in the NBA, won a coin flip Thursday morning giving it the right to pick ahead of Seattle in the league's expansion draft scheduled May 1 in New York.

Robert Breitbard of San Diego correctly called "tails."

CO-COACHES

A new era in Sheffield track will open today when the Wolverines travel to Youngsville. The old proverb is that "two heads are better than one." Sheffield will use the combined knowledge of Francis Wagner, left, and John Johnson, to guide the Wolverine track fortunes. (Photo by Ganley)

WOLVERINE LETTER WINNERS

for sale as such. We are merely announcing that we will consider offers. If this were a personal decision, this team would never be sold. However, I have a responsibility for 6,000 stockholders in a public company.

"We're not interested in offering the club for sale, but must entertain offers. That's the way it works with a public business. Anything I have is for sale at a proper price."

"We issued a statement that the club was not for sale. Now we want to keep faith with everyone. The club is for sale at the proper price to the proper people."

Kratter said he would not "consider any offer involving a move of the Celtics from Boston — at any price."

"We will stretch every fibre to see that this team goes to Boston and, if possible, to people with a long association with the club," he added.

The Los Angeles Lakers were sold for $5,150,000 last year, but Kratter noted that Los Angeles has "a larger fan market and better television arrangements" than Boston.

Although dethroned by Philadelphia in the Eastern Division playoff finals after winning the NBA title in nine of 10 previous years, the Celtics enjoyed their best season at the gate. They averaged more than 10,400 fans a game at home, an increase of about 1,500 over 1965-66.

Kratter emphasized that the loss of the championship and the probable war with the new American Basketball Association had nothing to do with the decision to sell for a right price.

San Diego Gets First Pick In NBA Player Selections

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The new San Diego club won the toss of a coin yesterday so it will get first choice over Seattle in the National Basketball Association expansion draft on May 1.

Robert Breitbard of San Diego correctly called tails when league president J. Walter Kennedy made the flip.

Both San Diego and Seattle pick 15 players, three each from the established clubs.

Current teams can protect seven players with others on their squad eligible for the first round draft.

After the initial round each club can protect one more.

San Diego and Seattle will make their choices alternately in the expansion draft to be held in New York City.

At the regular college draft, one May 3, also in New York, Seattle will pick sixth and San Diego seventh.

Established teams which finished low in the standings get the first five choices.

Detroit will get the first and fifth calls. The first is on its own order of finish. The fifth is Los Angeles draft spot, to compensate for the deal in which Rudy LaRusso was traded from the Lakers and retired.

Baltimore, Chicago and New York follow the first Detroit round.

Determination Keynote In SHS Track Program

BY JOHN GANLEY

Over 20 per cent of the enrollment of Sheffield High School is out for track in most schools this would seem like a lot but here it is only 28.

Co-coaches, John Johnson and Fran Wagner, will try to mold the never-say-die Wolverines into a respectable track team this spring. Both are new to the track sport.

Johnson is the former assistant football coach and junior high basketball coach at Sheffield. Wagner is the former head basketball coach at the Edinboro campus school in Warren.

The coaches will have a half dozen lettermen with which to work. They are Bill Beck, Howard Brush, John Castor, Ray Morrison, Merl Rice and Mike Steffan.

The coaches said that with the small enrollment at SHS the team lacks depth. They say that they are happy to have a track program here as part of the well-rounded athletic program.

Since victories will come hard for the Orange and Black, the purpose of the track program is to give the boys who like to run a chance to do so and also provide conditioning for the football players.

As in all sports, the Wolverines have lots of spirit and are working hard, according to their coaches.

John Castor, the team's leading scorer last year, is top man in three events for the Wol-

Senior Roy Swanson twirled a no-hit, no run game against Meadville here yesterday to pace the Warren Area High School baseball team to a 2-0 triumph in the season opener for the Dragons. Picture of Heavyweight Title Gets Very Fuzzy

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay said yesterday he would not enter the Army "under any circumstances." This could leave the status of his title in doubt.

Bob Evans, president of the World Boxing Association, said it was too early to make a statement concerning the status of the heavyweight title should Clay be imprisoned for refusing to enter the Army.

"The future of the heavyweight title is a problem of great concern and it has been under consideration," Evans said. "But any WBA decision will have to be made after the induction ceremonies."

Clay, scheduled for induction in Houston April 28, talked at a news conference about his draft situation and recent open housing demonstrations in Louisville.

He was asked if it would be correct to say that he would not enter the Army under any circumstances and he said: "Yes, that is right."

"... I am not going 10,000 miles from here to help murder and kill and burn another poor people simply to help continue the domination of white slave masters over the darker people the world over," Clay said. "This is the day and age when such evil injustices must come to an end."

Clay, a Black Muslim was asked if he would take a non-combatant role in the armed services, and he replied: "No, sir." The champ said earlier he also would refuse to take the oath of induction.

A draft board spokesman said if this happens, Clay would be required to sign a paper stating that he had refused and the matter then would be turned over to the U.S. district attorney's office for action.

John L. Smith, assistant U.S. district attorney in Louisville, said Clay could receive a maximum of five years in prison for failing to take the oath.

Clay said he would not disgrace "my religion, my people or myself by becoming a tool to enslave those who are fighting for justice, equality and freedom."

"I have said it once and I will say it again, the real enemy of my people is right here."

Concerning the open housing dispute in Louisville, Clay's hometown, the champ said he joined "in condemning the evil, illegal systems by which my people have been confined to slums and ghettos and doomed to live and die in inferior houses."

With his scheduled induction only a week away, Clay only has one recourse—an appeal filed with the U.S. Supreme Court. It already has refused to consider his case for exemption on the ground that he is a Black Muslim minister.

Clay made similar appeals to Kentucky courts and to his Louisville draft board. All were turned down.

Red-Hot Gay Brewer Owns Lead in Dallas with 64

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Gay Brewer, the Master's champion now engaged with Arnold Palmer in a fight for the lead in money winnings on the PGA tour, shot a six-under-par 64 yesterday to take the first round lead in the $100,000 Dallas Open Golf Tournament.

Brewer, pug-nosed veteran who has won more than $68,000 and is only about $7,000 back of Palmer, came in late to birdie the last three holes and snare the lead from a couple of youthful members of the tour — Hugh Royer of Columbus, Ga., and Kermit Zarley of Seattle, Wash.

Royer and Zarley carved 66s out of the damp, windy 6,777-yard Oak Cliff Country Club course.

Palmer had all sorts of trouble and came in six over par.

Warren Area High School's Roy Swanson picked up yesterday where he left off last season, pitching a no-hit, no-run ballgame to lead the Dragon baseball team to a 2-0 opening day victory over Meadville at War Memorial Field.

The senior righthander spun three no-hit games last year, one for Warren against Girard and two while wearing a Corry American Legion uniform.

Swanson turned in a superb performance before a good crowd at the local diamond, striking out eleven Bulldog batsmen and walking only one. Showing unusually fine control for this early in the season, he was not behind on more than three or four batters all day.

In addition to the free pass he issued to Meadville pitcher Joe Luben with two out in the top of the first inning, only two other Bulldog runners reached first base, both on infield errors. None made it as far as second.

The visiting Bulldogs, coached by Jim LaScola, spent a frustrating afternoon trying, without success, to solve Swanson's slants.

The closest Meadville came to a basehit was in the sixth inning when Jim Whalen ripped a shot back through the box. Swanson managed to deflect the ball slightly as it whistled past and shortstop Doug Sorensen came up with a brilliant pick-up and equally stellar throw to first to nip the runner.

Swanson's mastery of the "Dogs" is even more impressive when the fact that not one ball was hit out of the infield is noted. Two pitches were popped up for easy chances in the infield and seven ground balls were handled, including three by Swanson himself.

Swanson struck out at least one batter in each inning, setting down the side in the third frame and picking up two K's in the sixth and seventh.

Luben pitched almost as well. Bill Andrews and Jim McBride provided a little punch to the anemic Dragon attack with singles. Sorensen drove in McBride, who had reached first on a fielder's choice, stolen second and gone to third on the catcher's throwing error, with the Blue and White's first run on a hit to rightfield in the second inning.

With Swanson throwing bullets, it looked like the single tally was enough for a Warren victory, but the Dragons added a little insurance in the bottom of the sixth. Denny Valone nursed Luben for a walk to lead off the inning and was safe at second when a relay of Swanson's grounder to short was dropped.

Corky Greenwood flew out to deep center field for the first out, but advanced Valone to third on the tag-up. Jeff Marti also lifted a fly to center, but gained credit for an RBI and sacrifice when Valone tagged-up to cross the plate standing up.

In between the scoring it was pretty much three-up-three-down for Warren. McBride's line drive single to left started off the fifth frame, but he was stranded at third after stealing second and moving up another base on a fly-out by Sorensen.

Second baseman McBride also turned in an outstanding play on a ground ball hit into the hole between first and second in the fifth inning.

The Dragons are back in action tomorrow when they host Girard for a doubleheader at War Memorial Field at 1 p.m. Dragon Head Coach Bob Kuchler has slated Greenwood and Sorensen for mound duty, resting Swanson for a contest Monday at Erie against tough Cathedral Prep.

What Will Happen If Oath Not Taken?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department official said yesterday that if heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay refuses to serve in the armed forces he will be treated the same as everybody else who refuses to be inducted.

Clay, 25, is scheduled for induction April 28 at Houston. He said yesterday he will not wear an army uniform under any circumstances because to do so "would be an ugly sellout to my people and no matter what it costs me, whether jail or my life, I will not disgrace my religion, my people or myself."

Clay added he also would refuse to take a noncombatant role in the armed forces.

Clay has waged an unsuccessful court fight to avoid induction on the grounds he is a Black Muslim minister and therefore draft exempt.

The Justice Department official said that if Clay refuses to be sworn into the Army, he first will be warned of the consequences of his action, if he still refuses, his induction center will notify a U.S. attorney and either the state draft director or Clay's local board.

The Selective Service System then presumably would recommend to the U.S. attorney that Clay be prosecuted. The U.S. attorney then would seek a grand jury indictment or, if Clay waives the indictment, he could go directly to trial before a jury.

The likelihood of Clay being arrested at the induction center is considered slim. "It's very rare that anyone is arrested at an induction center," the official said.

If Clay is convicted he would face a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

WPIAL Places Aliquippa High On Probation

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The WPIAL Decisions Committee placed Aliquippa High School on 14 months probation yesterday for what the committee termed disorderly conduct at last season's Aliquippa-Ambridge basketball game.

One league official called the action the stiffest reprimand ever handed out by the league.

Provisions of the probation, which runs from May 1 "to at least June 15, 1968," include a requirement that all Ambridge-Aliquippa varsity sports events during the probation to be held during daylight hours. Most have been held at night.

The fracas occurred in Aliquippa Feb. 14 as Ambridge High School was on its way to an undefeated season and the state Class A championship.

Inter-Faith Drive Set for Oil City

Harry Segel of Warren, president of the Inter-Faith Center, Inc. announces that a campaign for funds in Oil City will start Tuesday. The goal in Oil City is $54,000.

Segel said that an outstanding group of Oil City civic leaders has been enrolled in the drive headed by funeral director Charles A. Morrison as general chairman.

Assuming divisional leadership are Edward P. Boyle, president of the Derrick Publishing Company, L. O. Hotchkiss, president, Northwest Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Co., and Rev. Paul E. Hannaford, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church.

Among those serving on the Oil City advisory committee are Judge William E. Breene, Mayor Raymond Anderson, Joseph Harvey, president, First Seneca Bank and Trust, Monsignor W. R. Hastings, and Rabbi Zoltan Racz.

An Inter-Faith office has been opened in the IOOF building with Charles R. Tranter serving as campaign consultant.

Segel also reported that other campaigns throughout northwestern Pennsylvania are still in progress and that Bradford and Franklin will soon open their drives.

To date the Inter-Faith group has raised over $256,000 toward a goal of $600,000. The money will be used to construct an Inter-Faith Center complex on the grounds of the Warren State Hospital so that the religious program for the patients can be enlarged and improved.

Governor Urges Yes On Nine

Pennsylvania must have a better, more modern constitution to give better service to its people, Governor Raymond P. Shafer said Wednesday in Franklin.

Speaking to 150 members of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women at a northwest regional membership conference the governor said "We pledged a modern constitution for Pennsylvania and thousands have testified for need of such a document."

"Vote yes nine times," he urged his listeners. He said seven of the changes on which Pennsylvanians will vote in the May primary concern the constitution.

One of the amendments would permit a governor to succeed himself.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Nolan P. Benner Jr. of Allentown.

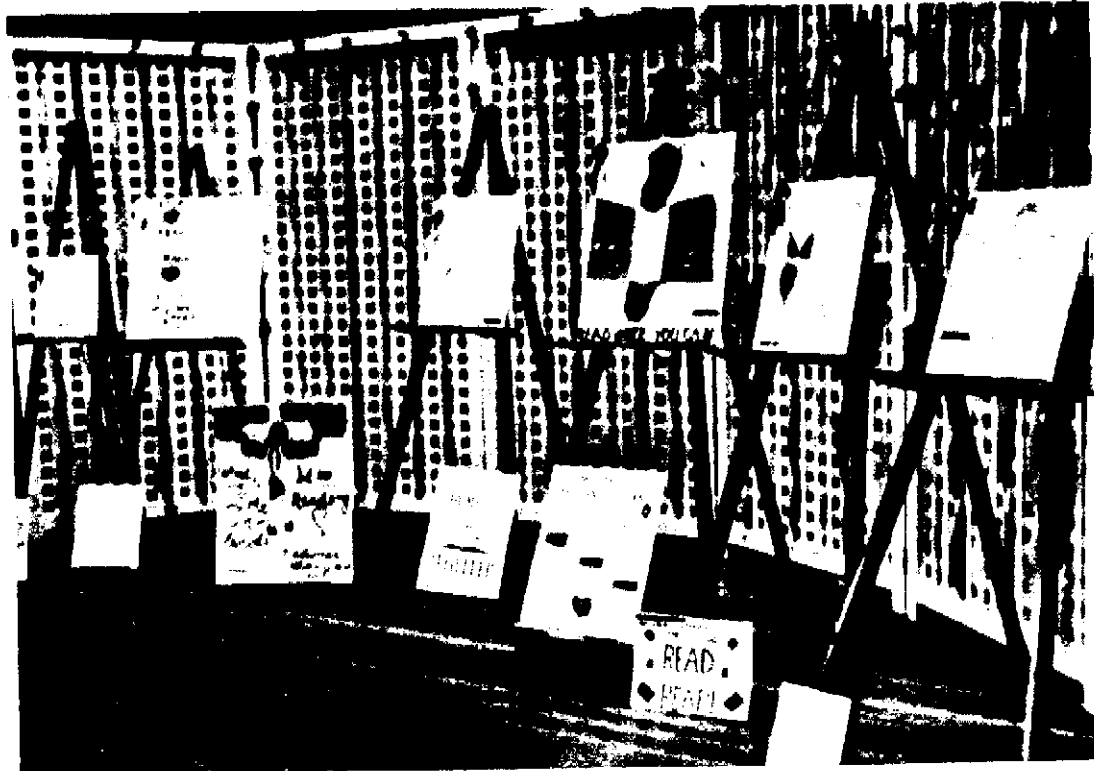

A panel workshop was conducted in the morning with Mrs. Benner, Miss Sally Ann Stauffer of Lancaster and Mrs. Peter K. Honaman of Landsville, discussing ways of increasing Council membership.

In Franklin to hear the governor and participate in the conference were four members of the Warren County Council of Republican Women, Miss Sunny Lucia, Mrs. Florence Hoffman, Mrs. Agnes Mong, of Warren and Mrs. Mayola Sanford of Youngsville.

Mrs. Samuel F. Bonavita and Mrs. Reese Campbell cancelled plans to attend due to a death in the family.

Named Specialist

Richard C. Stone, a former teacher in Warren borough schools, has been named a curriculum development specialist with the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction. His office will be at East Stroudsburg State College and he begins work in June. A 1948 graduate of Warren High, he has a master's degree from Lehigh University. His wife is the former Carolyn L. Kane and the family resides in Northampton at the present time.

AT WARREN STATE HOSPITAL

Patients' Posters Displayed

Seventeen patients at Warren State Hospital were honored at a meeting of the Cultural Club on Wednesday when they received prizes for posters made by them in recognition of National Library Week.

The winning posters in the contest were displayed in the hospital auditorium during the meeting.

This was the second National Library Week poster contest conducted by the Patient's Library under the sponsorship and with the assistance of the Volunteer Service unit of the hospital. Posters have been displayed throughout the hospital.

Last year, Warren State Hospital Library received a merit award for National Library Week activities. It was selected from the state's special libraries and the Pennsylvania Library Association.

The library system includes a medical library with a full-time head librarian, Mrs. Florence Aldrich. A nursing education library and patients' library is handled by a second librarian, Gilberta Bartoo.

At the meeting were 88 patients. Patients from the social skills class under Mrs. Evadna Andersen served refreshments. Additional assistance for the meeting was provided by other recreational department personnel.

Volunteer Service, which sponsored the contest and the prizes, was represented by Mrs. Ruth Levinson, and Ada Coe. Mrs. Levinson was judge of the contest and Miss Coe made the presentation of prizes.

Patients were honored for their work Wednesday night at a Cultural Club meeting.

AT JUNE MEETING

Sen. Scott Speaking To Regional Planners

Senator Hugh Scott is scheduled to speak at a special meeting of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Regional Planning and Development Commission on June 25.

Sen. Scott will explain the planning and development bill he has introduced in the senate which would require area-wide and regional planning as eligibility criterion for federal grants.

The executive committee of NRPDC met in Erie on Wednesday to lay the foundation for a regional tourist promotion drive this summer.

The committee also agreed to a bylaws change, subject to full membership vote, that would increase tourist and industrial representation on the committee.

According to Lewis L. Crippen, chairman of the commission, plans for a unified tourist promotion venture will be presented to the eight-county's full 56-member commission next month.

The committee urged state officials to begin erection of two tourist information stations on the Erie Thruway (Interstate Route 90) one at the New York State line and one at the Ohio border.

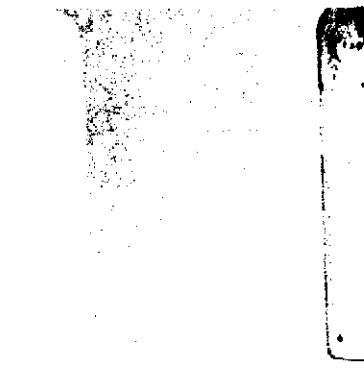

The stations have been promised by state officials. The full commission will act on the proposed bylaws change during its meeting May 25 in Oil City.

John H. Moss, regional supervisor for the state Department of Community Affairs, urged the committee to set up several technical advisory committees.

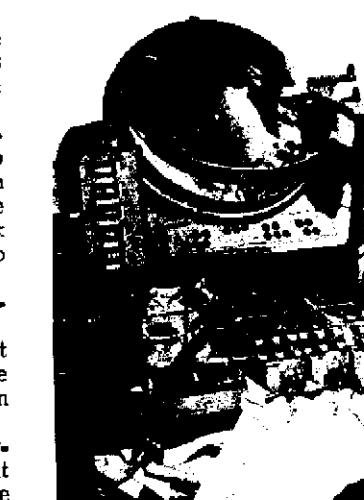

Moss said the terms of recent federal grant acts "would lead one to believe rather strongly that federal agencies will probably ask for regional Commission review of local grant-in-aid applications in the future."

"HUD (Housing and Urban Development) is very strong on the need of technical advisory committees to assist review in metropolitan areas. They may be expected to take a similar view of larger regional groupings."

County Man Cited

Corry city police on Tuesday cited John E. Foster, 24, of RD 1, Bear Lake, with two violations of the motor vehicle code after the area man lost control of his car on Wayne St. April 8 and rammed a utility pole, breaking it off. Foster was cited for reckless driving and driving without a license. Total property damage in the crash was $400. Information on the charges was filed with Alderman Porter Auer.

Police Summoned

State police of the Corry substation, summoned to the scene of a deer-auto collision on the Spring Creek-Corry road Tuesday evening, found only a blotch on the highway. A passing motorist, who stopped at the scene of the incident, told the unidentified motorist who hit and killed the deer, he would call state police, which he did. However, police found nothing when they arrived. Officers said the taking of deer meat out of season is illegal.

Japanese Learn Construction at Struthers Wells

TITUSVILLE — Three men from Osaka, Japan, are currently in Titusville for special instruction at the Struthers Wells plant on the construction of multi-wall vessels, according to a Struthers spokesman.

The men — Yoshiaki Masaki, Yoshihide Nakamura and Seki Ohta — are affiliated with the Hitachi Company in Osaka. Hitachi is an independent firm specializing in ship building and fabricated pressure vessels.

The men were recently granted licenses by Struthers Scientific in New York City.

They will spend approximately three weeks in Titusville learning about multi-wall vessels which are used in the chemical, petroleum and fertilizer industries.

Concert Series Sets Final Performance

Theodor Uppman, an established star of the Metropolitan Opera, will sing in recital here on Sunday, April 30, at 3 p.m. in Warren High School auditorium.

His concert will conclude the current series of programs presented for members of the Warren Concert Association. Uppman was originally scheduled to appear in January but illness prevented his trip.

The handsome and personable Uppman has won high praise for such varied roles as Paganini in "The Magic Flute", Masetto in "Don Giovanni", Pelleas in "Pelleas and Melisande", Guglielmo in "Così fan tutte", Marcello in "Bohème", Eisenstein in "Fidelio", and as the delightful Paquillo in "Perichole".

In addition, Uppman scored a distinct personal triumph when he created the title role of Benjamin Britten's opera "Billy Budd" in its world premier at Covent Garden. He later introduced it in America with the NBC-TV Opera.

Last summer he performed his inimitable characterization of Masetto in "Don Giovanni" at the Aix-en-Provence Festival, telecast over Eurovision to an audience of 20 million.

This summer he will be heard in "Damnation of Faust" with the New York Philharmonic under Charles Munch and also at the Hollywood Bowl with the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

THEODORE UPPMAN

While still on the coast, Uppman will do six performances of Escamillo in "Carmen".

Falconer Man Charged With Assault, Failure

FALCONER, N.Y. — Francis B. Winans, 63, of Kimball rd., RD1, Jamestown, has been charged by state police with second-degree assault and failure to comply with the law.

Winans is accused of striking Trooper D.L. Snyder of the Falconer barracks. Trooper Snyder and Trooper Frank Englund went to the Winans house Tuesday night with a warrant which charged the Kimball rd. man with failure to comply with a revocation order of the New York State Motor Vehicle Department.

Troopers Snyder and Englund said they subdued Winans and took him before Town of Gerry police justice Norris Parker. Winans was ordered held for a hearing and bail was set at $100 on the failure to comply charge with bail to be set later on the assault count.

Winans faced a similar charge last fall when he was accused of kicking Trooper Snyder in the face, when the trooper attempted to arrest him for drunk driving.

Police indicated that Winans failed to surrender his driver's license as ordered which brought forth the warrant for the new charge.

Where to Look

State police say traffic regulations are for your safety. Instead of looking around at the scenery and for traffic officers, start looking at the Traffic Signs and Signals and obey the laws.

Town Crier

... By Les Riekey

The little ceremony held in Central Park recently has raised the hackles of even the quietest among us. It was the most blatant example of treason seen in the history of our country, short of actually firing on Fort Sumter.

If you haven't heard about it, the whole thing started as a demonstration for peace in Vietnam. Thousands flocked into New York City from all over the nation to let the President know they don't like the way he and the Pentagon are running foreign policy, the war itself, and maybe even the shore leave habits of rowdy sailors in Norfolk.

This is an undeclared war, they cry, and thus is illegal. It is an immoral war, because people are getting killed. It's an expensive war, because it takes a lot of ammunition to flush Viet Cong out of the jungle.

Well, now that's interesting. Japan was slightly illegal when Pearl Harbor happened. The Viet Cong are somewhat immoral in the butchery they practice in the jungle prisons. And the ammunition is far less expensive than a piece of real estate with the tract labeled "Eastern Hemisphere."

What can we do about this insult to those who are slogging through Vietnamese mud to make Central Park the kind of place you can demonstrate in?

There aren't many peace demonstrators who have worn a uniform honorably. I think we can just consider the source and hope they do, go to Canada, as they have so often threatened.

It would be interesting to see how long Canada would last.

Hints From Heloise

When Food Burns

DEAR HELOISE:
How does one take the scorch taste from vegetables which have slightly burned in the bottom of a pan?

Careless One
Pour the food into another pan, saving only those bits that fall out quickly. Fill the burned pan with water, set aside, and worry about it later!

Rinse off the food you transferred to the clean pan once or twice with cold running water. Barely cover with more fresh water.

Then add one beef bouillon cube and a pat of oleo, and cook a little more.

This is the only way I know of, and I use it every time I get careless . . .

Heloise
DEAR HELOISE:
Whenever we play cards, I take a used Christmas (or any other occasion) card, turn it wrong side out, refold it, and have three sheets to keep score on.

By tucking a favorite story book under our three-year-old's pillow at night, we've been sleeping from a half-hour to an hour longer every weekend morning!

Books with lots of color and action win the most attention and keep him occupied longer after he awakes.

DEAR HELOISE:
Saving the tops (usually made of soft cardboard or some similar material) from glass milk bottles delivered by the dairy can be helpful when leaving notes for the milkman if the weather is bad . . . just insert the note and recap the bottle.

Antiques Show In Four Weeks
'Lavender And Old Lace'

With the antique show, "Lavender And Old Lace," being sponsored by the Warren Woman's Club just four weeks away plans being made by the various committees are taking definite shape.

The entertainment committee, which has Mrs. Harold A. Johnson, 103 Memorial Place, as chairman, now has tickets on sale for the luncheons which will be served on the two days of the sale, May 18 and 19.

Mrs. Robert Probst and her committee will also be busy the next few weeks selling tickets of admission to the show. These will also be on sale at the door during the hours of the show—10:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday, and 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday.

A talk with Mrs. James J. Rogan, general chairman of the show, revealed that the auditorium of the Woman's Club will be turned into a miniature of New York City's Coliseum, where the Antiques Fair was held recently. Booths will line both walls on either side, and a grouping will be arranged down the center of the room so that 15 booths in all will be available to the dealers who are expected to come from Erie, Buffalo, Bradford, Smithport, Punxsutawney and other locations, plus at least one local dealer.

Jewelry, old silver, antique glass, dishes, tinware and possibly furniture will be some of the interesting items on view for all lovers of yesteryear's relics. Even the children may find some old toys made of iron, such as banks, fire engines, etc., and perhaps some dolls, with their china heads and delicate features. In addition to all this, the Woman's Club members will have their own booth where they will display their own collections of antiques. Heirlooms which have been handed down through generations; objects which have been purchased from a dealer—everything from clocks to candelabra—will burgeon from this booth, which is strictly for showing, not for sale.

If any Woman's Club member is worried about the safety of her valuables, she can relax, says Mrs. Rogan, because a security guard will be on duty at night following the closing to make sure that nothing is stolen. This is one of the provisions of the contract which is given to each dealer attending the show. Members are asked to bring their antiques to the club on Wednesday, May 17. If further information is desired, it may be obtained by phoning Mrs. Rogan.

Incidentally, in case you are wondering how "young" can an antique be, recently passed legislation updates antiques to the year 1867. Formerly the old Tariff Act established 1830 as the dividing line between antiques and something that was merely "old." This law, of course, releases quite a few objects into the antique market, and also allows items made in foreign countries during this 37-year period to be imported to this country duty free.

The furniture in this period is not looked upon too favorably, much of it being machine-made and heavily ornate. This was the time of the massive chests and tables

Woman's Club Has 54th Annual Meeting
And Luncheon On Monday, April 17th

Bright red geraniums throughout the clubhouse added a springtime touch to the Woman's Club luncheon and fifty-fourth annual meeting on Monday, April 17. About one hundred members were in attendance.

Following punch served in the parlors, the guests assembled in the auditorium at tables centered with red geraniums in wicker baskets. Mrs. Robert Probst and Mrs. Julius Fino were in charge of decorating the tables and the club. Past presidents, who were introduced during the meeting, were honored at a special table and this year's officers and board members were seated at the speakers' table. The invocation was given by Mrs. Lloyd Cleveland.

After the luncheon, Mrs. James Potter, in the absence of the music chairman, Mrs. Joseph DeFrees, introduced the Barber Sals, the well-known local Sweet Adelines quartet, who presented five selections in their entertaining manner.

The business meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Arthur J. O'Connor, who welcomed the members and thanked them for her lovely corsage. She spoke of the successful year and graciously acknowledged the help and co-operation of her fellow officers, the department chairmen, the committee chairmen, the chairman of special events, the club staff and the entire membership.

The recording secretary's annual minutes were read by Miss Christine Hurd in the absence of Mrs. E. Ross Carlson, Mrs. Paul E. Harrington gave the treasurer's report and the account of the Scholarship Committee of the Warren Foundation and read the auditor's report. Mrs. James R. Barrett, chairman, reported on the business of the house committee, telling of the maintenance of the club building and new purchases for it. Historian and membership chairman, Mrs. Donald E. Conway, read a resume of the season's activities and announced the present membership status. She then led the members in a tribute to Mrs. F. M. Caghey, a long and active member, and Mrs. Edward Sheil, a new member, who passed away since the last annual meeting.

Mrs. Harold A. Johnson, chairman of the Entertainment Department, gave the annual report of her department's program: President's Day Tea, department luncheons, public soup and pie luncheons, the Wig Show and Dessert Card Party, the Morning Coffee and Style Show, the Children's Christmas Party, the "Swinging" dinner-dance for husbands and guests, the members' dessert-bridge party, and the annual luncheon. She called attention to the popular annual May Day Breakfast to be held for the public Tuesday, May 2, from 7 a. m. to 1 p. m., stating that tickets are now on sale and reservations for tables may be made at the club office.

The Art Department report was given by its chairman, Mrs. W. I. Newstetter, who announced its officers for the coming year: chairman — Miss Christine Hurd, vice chairman — Mrs. Hugh R. Robertson, secretary — Mrs. John Benjamin. An account of the Drama Department was presented by Mrs. Myer Berenfield, chairman, who then told that next season's officers are to be Mrs. Berenfield, chairman, Mrs. Donald S. Mervine, vice chairman, and Mrs. Rockwell O'Sheill, secretary. Miss Christine Hurd, chairman, reviewed the year's program of the Literature Department and announced the new officers: chairman — Mrs. Maurice Hoke, vice chairman — Mrs. Lawrence Sowles, secretary — Mrs. Myron Jewell. Mrs. Harold Reinhard's report of the Community Service Department was followed by her announcement of its new officers: Mrs. John J. Shaffer — chairman, Mrs. Gordon Kay — vice chairman, Mrs. Joseph A. Bevevino — secretary. Mrs. Myron E. Jewell, chairman, gave her report of the recent successful Encore Sale. Mrs. O'Connor commended her and also Mrs. C. Walter Johnson, chairman of the profitable "What's New for the Holidays?" show as well as all the chairman and workers for the club's other special events.

On May 18 and 19, the club is sponsoring an Antique Show and Sale. Mrs. James J. Rogan, chairman, told the members of the plans for the show, stating that professional dealers from Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio will be exhibiting and selling. Also, it is planned to have club members show their own antiques (but not to sell them)

WOTM Members Travelling
To Mooseheart, Illinois

Women of the Moose, Chapter 693, are planning a long-awaited trip to "The Child City" at Mooseheart, Illinois. The bus will leave Warren early Thursday morning, June 15. The bus will leave Mooseheart for the return trip to Warren the morning of Sunday, June 18.

The money for the bus fare has been raised by the W.O.T.M., all transportation is paid. Each co-worker will pay for her own meals and three nights lodging. The husband of the co-worker is invited to share this worthwhile trip. His expenses will also be only meals and three nights lodging, with transportation paid.

Reservations are to be made to Carrie Maeder, 401 Lincoln avenue, Warren, preferably in writing, no later than April 30. After April 30, reservations will be taken from other nearby chapters, such as Kane, Bradford, Jamestown.

Remember — if you are a Woman of the Moose member and want to see Mooseheart inexpensively, make your reservations by writing to Carrie Maeder at the address above.

by John Hall, and the carved pieces by Belter, the latter a favorite of the late Helena Rubinstein, a collector, who showed his ornate works off to great advantage.

Some of the desirable objects from this period, such as paperweights, dolls, coin silver, Sandwich glass, ironstone and Staffordshire, have always been sought after. Dealers feel that the early Victorian furniture isn't objectional, nor is the mid-Victorian: it is the over-embellished late Victorian period that is apparently repugnant to some. However, this category does not fall into the "antique" class as yet. Owners of this style furniture will have to hang on to it for a while before it legally reaches that coveted status.

So, come to the show next month and see what the dealers are presenting, and perhaps you can then return to your attics and basements and come up with a few antiques of your own!

Through The Looking Glass

Another peek "Through The Looking Glass" at the activities of the Warren General Hospital Auxiliary volunteers, reveals more than just preparations for the annual charity ball to benefit the hospital. The theme for the ball is based on the Lewis Carroll book "Alice In Wonderland", and tickets for the big social event of the season are now on sale. They may be obtained by calling any one of the following: Mrs. Richard Krapfel, chairman of ticket sales at 723-9275; Mrs. Harold A. Johnson, 723-5791; Mrs. John Huey, 723-4752; Mrs. Thomas Marsh, 723-8171.

A look beyond the committee selling tickets reveals the depth of accomplishments reached by the auxiliary in its efforts on behalf of the hospital. For instance:

There's a year-round magic created for the pediatrics ward by distribution of over 600 "pinkie dolls" to hospitalized children. These dolls are puppet-like with imaginative heads and cloth bodies that fit over the hand. "Pinkie dolls" and children—a perfect combination for flights of fancy.

"The Mad Hatter's Tea Party"—known locally as the auxiliary sewing group—meets twice a month. Last year they sewed approximately 2,562 need articles that the hospital requested.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you made the statement that people who treat animals as if they were humans ought to have their heads examined. I have lived among both animals and people for a good long time and I am in favor of treating animals BETTER than people simply because they deserve it.

When I was a young woman, I had the ridiculous notion that any husband was better than none, so, like a fool, I married the first man who asked me. To my everlasting credit, I recognized my mistake early and got rid of the lying, cheating tyrant. I am presently enjoying the companionship of a cat.

Now I am a queen in my home instead of an unpaid servant. I get affection when I want it and if I wish to be left alone, I need make no apologies. My cat is far more considerate and loyal than that heel who swore before God and man to cherish me 'til death do us part.

Did you hear of the old maid who said she didn't need a husband because she had a parrot who swore, a fish who drank and a cat who stayed out all night? Well, I'm with her.—CONTENT

DEAR CON: Any woman who holds such a rock-bottom opinion of men should do some nice fellow a favor and stay single the rest of her life.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the tramp that "Mrs. Betrayed" wrote to complain about. Every word she said is true. Her description of me was perfect. And, I might add, her description of herself was perfect, too.

She is indeed attractive, well-groomed, well-educated, a fine hostess and she comes from a very distinguished family. I have no education to speak of and I am not beautiful. I don't know beans about entertaining company, and my family is from nowhere.

So, the question I'd like to ask "Mrs. Betrayed" is this: Why would a man who is married to such a wonderful woman spend time with a tramp like me?—DUMB BELLA

DEAR BELLA: Because she's there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sick at heart as I write this letter. I read this morning where three small children suffocated to death in unused refrigerators. The fear and anxiety suffered by those little ones before they died is too horrible to contemplate. And it was so needless!

Several years ago I remember a letter in your column about this sort of carelessness on the part of mothers. You suggested the doors of the old ice boxes and refrigerators be removed. I'd like to improve on your advice if you will permit it.

Please tell mothers to ask the movers to place the old refrigerators with the doors toward the wall. This requires no time or energy, and the children are protected against possible tragedy.

Thank you, in advance for publishing my letter.—CONCERNED GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRAN: I still recommend removing the doors. But I am going to address an additional plea to furniture movers the world over—wherever you may be. Please tack this column up in the garage, the wash room, the warehouse, wherever you think it will get the greatest exposure. The simple act of placing the old unused refrigerator with the doors toward the wall could save hundreds of lives.

Want to say "no" to drinking without your buddies putting you down? Get cued in. Write for "Booze and You—For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

Have A 'Swap Party'

Remember that cyclamen yellow shift you bought on impulse one day? It seemed a fantastic bargain until you faced the fact that yellow makes you look slightly ill. And how about that mod outfit? True, the London Look may be great on magazine covers, but not everyone fits into the mini-skirt mold. Take a soul-searching peek into your closet and dresser drawers. Racks and rows of clothes but "nothing to wear"? Then the time has come to throw a Swap Party. Take heart. Your friends are probably suffering silently, too, with white elephants they bought on impulse.

HOW TO BEGIN

Weed out your unweareables. Anything in good condition is fair game. Happily, it may be possible to salvage items which need only a stitch or two to make them look just right. Resolve to fix them yourself (every girl worth her salt knows how to sew). Incidentally, you might organize a weekly sewing bee to put a little fun in your stitching.

Major alterations, of course, require a good tailor. After tackling closets and drawers, sort your unwanted clothes into neat piles. These are your contributions to the Swap Party.

NEXT!

Call your friends and hold a preliminary meeting. Decide upon a convenient date. Parcel out various tasks to the most qualified, i.e.: marking hems, basting, tagging, bringing refreshments. Remind everyone that swappable clothes must be cleaned and pressed.

Necessities for a Swap Party include a clothes rack (rent or borrow one) for coats, dresses, skirts, jackets; a long table for displaying sweaters, blouses; a full-length mirror or two. Be sure to have a screen, behind which potential swappers may try on clothes sans critical stares.

Two efficient girls should be able to handle the tagging and sizing of each garment. They'll need a supply of tags and markers.

HOW TO SWAP

If the purple sequined top you bought in a moment of madness is a perfect swap for a beige cashmere sweater, well and good. Work out a system beforehand, however, of how to handle large discrepancies between items. One coat, for example, might equal a skirt and two blouses.

THE FOOD SETS THE MOOD

For added gaiety, the refreshment committee should plan some tasty tidbits for nibbling before the swapping gets underway. Each girl could be assigned to bring one dish. (Paper plates, cups, mats, napkins, and plastic cutlery make cleaning up a lark!)

Plan a hot seafood tray: shrimps, marinated in garlic-spiked oil and lemon juice, broiled until pink; fresh scallops broiled quickly and served with hot catsup dunk sauce. Other dishes might include little frankfurters wrapped in bacon or tiny hamburgers.

Hot tomato juice or bouillon, served in sturdy paper cups with handles and topped with a bit of dill and a few pieces of popcorn, go well with all the above fare.

For dessert, have an artistic friend arrange a gorgeous platter of fresh and dried fruit.

Feast on delicious snacks, swap sensibly, enjoy yourself, and you'll be a happier "New You" after the party's over. JUST FOR YOU: A Swap Party is perfect for bridge clubs, teen and Scout groups—anywhere girls get together to have fun and join in a good cause.

7th-Day Adventists Begin 'Youth-to-Youth' Program

They call it "Operation Undertaker's Three."

It is a youth-to-youth, word-of-mouth program being launched by youth of the Warren Seventh-day Adventist Church this week-end to warn all young people about the dangers of using alcohol, narcotics, and tobacco.

"In far too many instances these three agents—alcohol, narcotics, and tobacco—are the undertaker's three consistent contributors," said Grant Nelson, temperance director for the local church, in announcing the campaign with the unusual name.

Mr. Nelson said each young person of the local church will be asked to talk with one or more youthful friends during the period of April 23-29, which is Youth Temperance Education Week, to inform them about the dangers which can result from the use of alcohol, narcotics, and tobacco.

The specially designated week is sponsored by the Youth Temperance Council of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union, said Mr. Nelson.

"There is a continuing need for young people to be educated regarding the dangers involved in the use of the 'Undertaker's Three,'" said Mr. Nelson. "Mortality statistics relating to all three are on the rise today. Alcoholism, for example, continues to constitute this nation's Number Four Public Health problem. Cigarette smoking continues to send multiplied thousands to an early grave because of its slow malignant effect. And narcotics, including the newly popularized psychedelic drugs such as LSD, peyote, and others will claim more lives in 1967 than in any previous year."

TPG Meets At Lincoln School

The Allegheny Valley Teacher Parent Group held its April meeting in the Lincoln School with Mrs. Veto Greto presiding. The group voted to give Patrol boys a treat with a skating party, and it was announced that the Scholarship Fund is to receive a donation.

Election of officers was held with the following results: President, Mrs. Gretchen Tingwall; vice president, Mrs. Lorraine Dennis; secretary, Mrs. Doris Vicini; treasurer, Mrs. Donna Moore; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Judy Grusch; 3rd vice president, Mrs. Margaret Paul.

The program for the evening was a talk on Egypt by an exchange student from that country Miss Bassma Sadek of Cairo.

To conclude the evening, refreshments were served by Mrs. Alex Dorotich and Mrs. Gail McClellan. At the opening of the meeting Mrs. Robert Walker gave devotions.

The bidding:
North East South West
Pass 1 ♠ 4 ♥ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠ South possessed the high card values to make a take-out double, however, when East opened the bidding with one spade, there seemed little point in inviting his partner to bid a suit when South was interested only in a heart contract. Inasmuch as he required only a few trump from partner with which to ruff out his losing spades, South chose to gamble it out for game by leading directly to four hearts. There was the further consideration that his direct action might inhibit the opposition from uncovering a fit in one of the minor suits.

West opened the jack of spades and South won the trick with the queen. He promptly led a small trump to the jack in dummy so that he might discard one of his losing diamonds on the ace of clubs. A spade was returned and East played the eight. Declarer feared that if he covered with the ace, it might get ruffed, so he followed suit with a small spade.

East returned a trump and South was unable to avoid the loss of three spade tricks and one diamond. In his haste to obtain an immediate discard on the ace of clubs, declarer had neglected the more important consideration of counting up to 10 tricks.

The opening lead gives South two spade tricks which together with six hearts and one club, brings his total up to nine. The 10th trick may be obtained by trumping a spade with North's high heart. In order to protect his ace of spades from an adverse ruff, however, declarer should concede one of his losers early by leading a small spade from his hand at trick two.

East will be in, and the defense is in position to cash two diamond tricks, but then they are finished. South ruffs the six of spades with the jack of hearts, discards the seven of spades on North's ace of clubs, then draws trump and cashes his ace of spades at the end.

PORTUGAL TO BUILD BIG DAM ON ZAMBEZE

LOURENÇO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP)—Portugal is scouting around for $200 million to finance the first stage of a dam on the Zambeze River, which will be the largest of the African continent.

Officials of this Portuguese African territory recently announced that the Cabora Bassa Dam, which will take five years to build, will be able to supply 48 billion kilowatts a year and export the production to the neighboring nations of Rhodesia, Malawi, Zambia and South Africa.

According to the project, the water reserves will cover 2,700 square kilometers and make the Zambeze River navigable for 300 kilometers, once the dam is built.

Besides irrigation purposes, the dam will be used for the production of aluminum from bauxite and for various chemical industries, the officials said.

HARVARD BIOLOGIST SAYS:

Unfit Americans Have Weak Hearts

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN
CHICAGO (AP) — A researcher yesterday blamed the rising incidence of heart attacks in the United States largely on lack of vigorous exercise, declaring, "There never has been a group on earth less physically active than the modern American."

Jean Mayer, Ph.D., professor of nutrition at the Harvard University School of Public Health, blamed lack of exercise for most cases of overweight and for high levels of blood cholesterol to which many doctors attribute heart disease.

The heart muscle, which aids victims in surviving heart attacks, also lacks adequate collateral sources of blood supply because of neglect of exercise, he added.

"Since the year 1900 the per capita food intake in the United States has been going down, but the amount Americans exercise has gone down more sharply," he said in an interview and research paper at the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Mayer and Dr. Per-Olof Astrand of the College of Physical Education, Stockholm, Sweden—both of whom practice the exercise they recommend—appeared on a panel symposium on nutrition and work performance.

Astrand said he runs and walks briskly at intervals for half-hour periods twice a week and has been trotting daily through Grant Park, across the street from the Conrad Hilton Hotel—headquarters for the biologists' meeting—since the convention's sessions started Sunday.

"I use up 10,000 extra heart beats by running twice a week, but I save more than 70,000 heartbeats a week by doing it," he said.

Astrand said this is because a conditioned heart becomes more efficient in its pumping action and beats slower when a person is at rest.

Mayer said his office has been on the fifth floor of a Boston building for the last four years and "I've used the elevator only once during that time."

Mayer said he also walks briskly every day, plays tennis and squash, and swims and skis.

Both researchers said the type of exercise most Americans follow—body bending, golf and bowling—are helpful in burning up excess calories but doesn't do a great deal to help the heart and its arteries.

Mayer cited many medical studies which he said show that lack of exercise is a major cause of heart attacks.

He said cheesemakers who carried supplies and equipment on their backs while trudging up and down mountain slopes in Switzerland were found to have lower blood cholesterol levels and fewer heart attacks than others in that country, although their meals consisted mostly of cheeses and other fats.

SELECTIVE RESERVE FORCE

White Renames State Guard Unit

HARRISBURG (AP)—Maj. Gen. Thomas R. White Jr., state adjutant general, said yesterday that the 28th Infantry Division Selected Reserve Force (SRF) has been named to participate in a full-scale training maneuver on the Carolina coast during August.

White said the maneuver would necessitate that the division SRF, composed of National Guard units in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Maryland, undergo three weeks of summer training, Aug. 12-Sept. 2, rather than the usual two.

"The 28th Division has been singularly honored by being selected and invited to participate in this maneuver," White said, "Again the Army has recognized that the division is truly outstanding."

The 28th Division SRF is made up of high-priority National Guard units which were designated in 1965 for stepped-up training as a means of increasing their state of readiness.

Participation by the division SRF in the maneuver, termed by the Army as "Operation Kitty Hawk," comes at a time when the Pennsylvania's 28th National Guard Division is about to lose its commanding general of 14 years, Maj. Gen. Henry K. Fluck.

Fluck recently announced his intention to resign and subsequently was appointed to a $19,900 position with the General State Authority. Although no reason was given for the retirement, it was well known within and without the Pennsylvania guard that there was internal friction between Fluck and White.

Fluck had been chosen by the Pentagon to command the SRF forces since Pennsylvania units formed the bulk of the specially created division.

White said a new commander would be named in the near future for the 28th Pennsylvania Division.

It is likely that he would also be Fluck's successor as commander of the SRF forces, which are headquartered in Harrisburg.

White said "Operation Kitty Hawk" was the first military training maneuver in which all elements of the Armed Forces would participate—the regular Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps and the National Guard.

He said the exercise would be held on 1.5 million acres of coastal land near Greenville, N.C., and include a beachhead assault and air borne operation among its many facets.

The 28th Division SRF will spend a week at camp A.P. Hill and Pickett in Virginia before proceeding to the maneuver area, White said.

In the event that the Pentagon should alter its plans and the division not participate in the maneuver, White added, the units would train in Virginia for the normal two weeks, Aug. 12-16.

Free Course In Boating Safety Here

The Pennsylvania Fish Commission's Office of Watercraft Safety will present its free boating course entitled "Boating Pleasure" in the Warren area at the Kalbfus Club located on Chapman Dam Road near Clarendon.

The course will consist of three two-hour sessions which start at 7:30 p.m. on three successive Tuesdays, April 25th, May 2nd and May 9th. These courses are designed as an introduction to boating for all age groups—you don't have to own a boat to attend. In fact, the course starts with the selection of boat, motor and matching trailer. It continues with State registration procedures, insurance, some necessary nautical terms, Pennsylvania's Motor Boat Requirements, Rules of the Road for operating, the buoyage systems—both Federal and State, and ends with seamanship as applied in emergency situations.

Each person successfully completing the course will be issued a certificate of completion and a personal identification card.

These courses are not designed to compete with national educational groups, such as the U.S. Power Squadron, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, or American National Red Cross; but they are designed to give the student detailed information for which he has immediate need and to encourage his further education with one of the above national organizations.

Well qualified instructors at the Warren classes will include personnel from the Commission's Watercraft Safety Offices.

A. H. Wright, Jr., Watercraft Safety Officer for Northwest Pennsylvania Station in Erie, will direct the classes. If you need more information, call Bill Brooker at 723-8718 or Ken Corey at 723-9498.

FOR TEENAGERS

Summer Theatre Casting Starts

By LINDA BARNEY

As everyone knows, the newest theatrical group in Warren is the newly founded Summer Theatre. Although this group has just been organized, they have already planned a summer of great entertainment for interested persons.

Anybody who enjoys working in the theater is urged to try out for parts in the plays, and all teenagers are more than welcome. They may try out for parts, or they may be apprentices if they choose to do so.

Auditions for the plays are held every Friday night at 7:30 in the hospitality room in the new Northwest Savings and Loan Building. Parts for five different plays are being auditioned for, so anybody interested is urged to come.

For the production of the plays, a barn has been acquired on the Scandia Road, two miles south of Blueberry Golf Course. There will be workbees every Saturday and Sunday at the barn, from one to five, to convert it into a theater. Anyone may come and all they are asked to bring are themselves, and, of course, hammers and brooms. Since no name has been thought of for the barn, there is a contest for the name that best suits it. Any entries with the suggested name, or names, should be sent to Warren Summer Theater, 7 Second ave. For a prize, the winner of this contest will receive two season tickets.

Five plays are being planned for the entire season. There will be a performance every night, except Monday and Tuesday, and each play will run for two weeks. On Monday nights there will be a Variety-Vaudeville. Anybody may try out, and any local talent is urged to try out. Auditions and try outs for Variety-Vaudeville will also take place on Friday nights at the Northwest Savings and Loan, unless other plans are made.

The five plays that will be produced are — "Subject Was Roses," which will run from June 28 to July 9, "Streetcar Named Desire," which will be presented from July 12 to July 23, "Mother Courage," presented from July 26 to August 6, "Two for the Seesaw," presented from August 9 to August 20, and "Mad Woman of Chaillet," presented from August 23 to September 3.

ON STUDENT COUNCILS

Eisenhower Delegates Attend Conference

By CINDY GLOTZ and MITZI BREZEE

On April 13 and 14, five students and their faculty advisor traveled to St. Benedict's Academy for Girls in Erie for a Student Council convention.

Students representing Eisenhower High School were Sue Shield, President; Dick Hale, vice-president; Mary Furlow; Marc Briggs; and E. H. S., exchange student, Mario Nunez. Faculty advisor was Mr. Ronald Dunbar.

The convention began on Thursday with topic discussions and groups. The talks dealt with the problems of the Student Council. Everyone participated in their groups. Also on Thursday there was a banquet and a "get acquainted" dance. The dance was in honor of all the student council delegates. It gave them all a chance to get to know each other better and to compare their council systems. The theme of the convention was, "Young With All Our Might."

Discussed at the meetings was a variety of different topics. Each student council from each school explained their ideas and how they operated. Also discussed were fund-raising projects of each council; the powers of each student council and the influence they had on the students and the school as a whole.

Methods of elections were discussed and how officers were nominated. An important point brought out was the relationship of the faculty and the students.

Friday afternoon the students met the mayor of Erie. The mayor talked to the convention for a while and gave his views on the youth of this country.

They also met with the superintendent of the Erie schools.

Twenty-one exchange students from various schools were present. Each one gave a speech on their home country—its people and its customs. They also gave a brief summary on their stay here in America.

Group Four is personal typing. It is a three-week, no credit course and two sessions will be offered: June 19 to July 12 and July 13 to August 2. There will be a class for Senior High students from 9:00 to 12:00 in the morning and a class for Junior High students in the afternoon during each session.

Group Five is enrichment. This is a class in advanced reading improvement for the college-bound student. This program is designed to sharpen reading skills already utilized and to help good readers become even better readers. Students will meet two hours each morning, five mornings per week, for a three-week period from June 19 to July 12.

Group Six is acceleration, credit or advanced classes for those who wish to take new work for additional credit which they cannot conveniently take in a normal schedule during the regular school year. These classes will meet for four hours daily for six weeks and cover the entire year's work for one full high school credit. If there is adequate enrollment courses will be offered in American military history, P.O.D., physics, chemistry or chem. study, business math, world history, algebra II, unified geometry, I.T.A., and business administration for college bound students.

One hundred percent attendance is required of all students. Absence will be excused only for death in the immediate family or a doctor's excuse for illness. Anyone missing three days will be asked to withdraw from the course without credit and three tardy marks will be considered sufficient cause for dismissal. Students planning to take courses in summer school should sign up in the Guidance Office before May 19.

Szeverenyi Wins Navy Cruise Again

By BOB DELONG

WAHS junior Nick Szeverenyi won third prize and a NASA award at the Allegheny Mountain Science Fair held recently in Bradford.

Third prize went to Nick's project entitled "Amino Acids in Human Blood". He separated and identified the five dominant amino acids in human blood by chromo-tography.

The prize is a Navy cruise award and $15. The cruise is a five-day voyage on a naval destroyer. Nick also received an NASA award of five dollars.

Last year Nick's project (a different one, of course) won second place, which was also a Navy cruise, so this will be his second trip on a destroyer.

SIDNEY MASON: CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

OPEN LETTER To All Democrats In Warren County

As your neighbor and fellow-citizen, I should like to have a heart-to-heart talk with you by means of this letter. Just twenty-five days from today — on Tuesday, May 16, in the Primary — you will be exercising your right to select the type of man you want to represent you on the Board of County Commissioners, and to look after your interests and welfare.

Under our Democratic system of government, it is your duty to yourself and the community in which you live to express, by way of your vote, your preference. All workers in government are your employees, and should so regard themselves. They are answerable to you because you are, in the final analysis, the all-powerful sovereign. In order to make our Democracy work you must remain the master, with power to hire and to fire. Yours only is the right to determine who your representatives shall be.

No one can serve two masters. When you vote for a man you are hiring that man to do certain work for you. He should never think that he knows what is good for you better than you do. After all he is your employee. There is no other way to make our Democracy work.

I am sincerely grateful for the opportunity to serve you, if you choose to give it to me, just as I am sincerely grateful to my parents for having given me an easy, simple name to pronounce and remember: Sidney Mason. Both the first and the last have only two syllables. And as luck would have it, my name is number one on the ballot.

SIDNEY MASON

missed from Warren General Hospital, both are reported improved. Harold Lyle of Dayton, Ohio was a recent visitor at his mother's home. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coulter of Warren are helping out at the Lyles, during Mrs. Lyles' convalescing.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Snyder and daughter Judy were weekend visitors in Barberton Ohio. Judy has recently been dismissed from Warren General Hospital where she was a medical patient for a week.

WCS members of Methodist Church met Thursday for a sauerkraut dinner and meeting. The Omega Class holds its annual Rummage Sale the evening of April 24 and all day April 25 in the church basement.

Mrs. Fred Rounds will entertain members of the Bethany Young Women's Bible Class of Sheffield at her home Thursday evening, April 20th.

Karin and Kevin with Jessica Blair were chosen to represent Sheffield High School in the North West Junior District Band in Albion, Pa. on Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Weigel attended the concert and Karin and Kevin returned home with them.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rae and son Lawrence of Bradford were visitors at the home of Mrs. Roy Holden and with Mrs. Holden they visited Mr. and Mrs. Steven Urbanik in Youngsville, Sunday.

Mrs. Ray Ishman entertained Saturday for her son Dennis' seventh birthday. Sixteen guests were present to help him celebrate; some guests came from Warren and Kane.

TEN CHURCHES INVOLVED

Huge Church Merger Stalls

NEW YORK (AP) — A switch in signals appears likely to hold up temporarily the development of a projected large-scale Protestant merger. But leaders said the change wouldn't retard the over-all process.

"It may take a little longer at this particular point than we had anticipated, but I don't think it means an actual slowdown," said the Rev. Dr. David G. Colwell, of Washington, D.C., chairman of the consultation on church union.

"In fact it should put us on a firmer footing for progress in the long run." Nevertheless some misgivings have been voiced about it.

The modified approach came to light in recommendations circulated in advance of a meeting May 1-5 in Cambridge, Mass., of representatives of 10 participating denominations.

Although it was previously planned to have proposals on organization of a unified church ready for consideration, a special commission handling the matter said it found "further exploratory discussion" was needed.

In short, it recommends that the church representatives take a longer, harder look at the prospects, before trying to take the leap.

This is not "to decelerate the movement toward union," but "in order that agreements may be reached on solid and enduring grounds," said the special commission, headed by the Rev. Dr. Elmer J. Arndt, of Eden Seminary, Webster Groves, Mo.

The talks, begun in 1962, with four denominations involved, have expanded to an array of 10 major communions, with a total of about 25 million members, more than a third of American Protestantism.

In Indianapolis, the Rev. Dr. George G. Beasley Jr., secretary of the consultation, said the influx of new participants—four additional denominations in the last year—may itself put a minor crimp in the unification timetable.

The tentative timetable, set a year ago, estimated five to 13 years' work in drafting a unification plan and getting it approved by the various church bodies.

Dr. Beasley, of the Christian Disciples of Christ—Churches, predicted that two more denominations may soon enter the deliberations, bringing the total to 12, three times the number at the outset.

Every large Protestant "church in America is having to reassess its existence in terms of the consultation," he said, adding that he was increasingly optimistic about the outcome.

However, there were some rumblings about the recommendations for extended deliberations, before tackling an organizational blueprint. A Methodist editor, Arthur J. Moore, writes in Christianity and Crisis:

"Church union proposals have a short life span. If they do not come to fruition within a certain period of time, they lose momentum and die. With each such failure, there can be a hardening of the status quo." Denominations involved include:

United Presbyterian, Episcopal, Methodist, United Church, Christian Churches, Evangelical United Brethren, Presbyterian Church U.S.—southern—African Methodist Episcopal, African Methodist Episcopal Zion and Christian Methodist Episcopal.

Tidioute Man In 'Sam Houston'

Army Spec. 4 Richard E. Sager, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Sager, of 15 Church st., Tidioute, participated in "Operation Sam Houston" in Vietnam with the 4th Infantry division.

"Sam Houston" which ran from Jan. 1 to April 1, was a successful search and destroy operation which took place in the Central Highlands near the Cambodian border.

Sager is a rifleman with Co. A, 1st Battalion of the Division's 8th Infantry. His wife, Margaret, resides at RD 2, Titusville.

EL CAJON, Calif. Does he or doesn't he?

TIDIOUTE

From Our Corner

By LENORE MCINTYRE
SO...WHAT'S NEW?

Lately I have been pondering a suitable answer to the question nearly always encountered at a public meeting, a gathering of friends, or a leisurely Saturday afternoon stroll through Tidoute's booming business section. Sooner or later comes the question: So...what's new?

Discussing the grandchildren with someone who isn't a grandparent is about as gratifying as preparing filet mignon for a vegetarian. And politics is a dangerous subject these days unless the only issues you support are motherhood, the flag, lowering or preferably eliminating taxes, and a return to "the good old days" (which really weren't very good).

So I am developing a card index of subjects to which I will refer (eeny, meeny, miny, moe) when next queried.

For instance, did you know that NASA had a secret project not long ago called Project Able? Actually, this was a misnomer and if the space engineers had been devotees of "The Man From U.N.C.L.E.," they would have chosen the more appropriate title of "The Mirror, Mirror in the Sky Affair."

Essentially the project was for the purpose of learning if it might be feasible to suspend a huge mirror in space in synchronous orbit, moving with the earth in such a way as to appear to be in a stationary position. Sunlight could be reflected toward the dark side of the earth and thus turn night into day on any selected portion of the globe.

You can readily imagine where such a conversation piece might lead. From discussing the merits of nighttime illumination for the purposes of search and rescue work, or lengthening the short winter days in northern climates, to its military implications, the project has negative aspects.

Its capacity for altering the night and day cycle certainly would interfere with astronomy (nobody would take his girl out to study the stars in broad day light) and it quite conceivably would disturb the normal processes of plant and animal life. This subject certainly piques the imagination, so you take it from here.

For proponents of the birth control pill who fear that an overpopulated world will mean fewer calories under the belt there is fish flour. Science is currently making an extensive study of harvesting the oceans in search of food to augment land production.

Already the Federal Drug Administration has put its seal of approval on the manufacture of fish flour. This is a colorless, tasteless (hopefully odorless) substance made from pulverizing and processing a species of fish called hake. The oceans are home for trillions of these but nobody catches them because they are too bony for the table.

But made into flour and mixed with other food, or eaten alone, a few cents worth of this will provide enough protein for a week. And cabbage and lettuce can be grown on the ocean floor simply by aerating the water with oxygen (a trivial matter).

If the subject of dried algae and plankton bores you, then let's talk about pupillometrics. You never heard of it? Even poets know that the eyes are the windows of the soul and now science confirms the age-old principle that the eye can't lie.

The new tongue-twisting science, pupillometrics, literally means "measuring the pupil of the eye." These eye measurements tell what you're really thinking as opposed to what you really are saying. The pupil of the eye expands when you're interested in something or it's giving you pleasure. Conversely, the pupil contracts when you are bored or mentally expressing dislike.

Aside from its research value in psychology, marketing, etc., think of its possibilities in social life. Or on the domestic scene. Or...even politics.

So, be wary the next time someone gives you the eye. Or you ask "So...what's new?"

The group meets yearly to review the contract and receive current information about the psychiatric nursing program conducted for them at the hospital.

Harriett E. Morgan, director of nursing at Warren State Hospital, greeted the group of 28 directors at 9 a.m., after coffee and rolls had been served in the third floor living room. A business meeting, group discussion with hospital psychiatrists and instructors followed.

Guests at lunch with the directors were Dr. Robert Israel, Dr. John Urbatis, Dr. John Acop, Dr. John Stolar, Dr. Alex.

Corry Housing Critical, Says Firm Manager

Corry's number one problem—the shortage of adequate housing—has been brought before Corry city council for solution. Bringing the matter up this week was J. H. Knipp, manager for Elgin Electronics, Inc., who said his firm plans to double its size in the near future.

Knipp said he and his company is concerned over the lack of housing in the community and a gap between the appraised value of houses and their actual selling price. The Elgin manager said his firm would add 100 employees who would of necessity be recruited elsewhere, because of the exhausted labor market in the Corry area.

Finding housing would be virtually impossible under the present conditions, Knipp said.

Broderick Says Graduated Tax Not Possible

Lt. Gov. Raymond Broderick told an Erie audience Wednesday that a graduated state income tax in Pennsylvania "is completely out of the picture" in the proposed constitutional convention.

Broderick said consideration of such a tax is expressly prohibited by the "uniformity clause" of the Constitution which the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has ruled forbids such a plan.

Broderick was in Erie to urge support of the convention question, among nine questions on the May 16 ballot. He addressed several civic and political leaders, among whom was George Mead, publisher of the Times-Mirror and Observer.

Expo 67 Attracting Millions of Americans

BY MAX HARRELSON
MONTREAL (AP)—In one of the most unusual invasions in history, five to six million U.S. tourists are expected to visit Canada in the next six months to see the Montreal World's Fair.

This is one of the more pleasant prospects faced by officials of Expo 67 as they battle to get everything ready, including exhibits by 70 foreign countries.

They insist that every pavilion and every service will be in operation when the gates open Friday. The fair will end Oct. 27.

The officials acknowledge they still have plenty of problems, but they are happy over the advance sale of admissions and they believe they have overcome their main difficulties in handling lodging requests.

Advance sales indicate they will at least reach their goal of 10 million visitors and 35 million separate admissions. They already have sold $33 million worth of tickets as compared to the $22.5 million they had expected to sell before opening day.

At least half the visitors are expected to be from the United States, just 32 miles south of the Expo site.

The Canadian Tourist office reports a record number of inquiries from U.S. residents who are interested in visiting Expo or other events connected with Canada's celebration of its 100th birthday.

Expo officials have been concerned by publicized reports of snarls in handling lodging reservations, alleged cases of fraud and by reports of spiraling prices for lodging and food.

The concede they did run into a tremendous backlog of lodging requests at one time but say this is straightened out and that there will be housing for every person who comes to Montreal.

promised to make good every dollar lost through fraud by any Expo visitor.

Leading commercial hotels have been booked solidly for many months. But officials say there is an ample supply of facilities in efficiency apartments, motels private homes, trailers and camp sites.

Prices have been fixed by legislation, although some increases were made before the law was passed and some were permitted to reach the legal maximums.

As for Expo itself, the major pavilions have been completed, well ahead of schedule. The U.S. and Soviet pavilions are holding press previews within the next day or two. Others have already been open for limited viewing. One is the $21 million Canadian pavilion, the most costly at the fair.

The Soviet pavilion, which cost $15 million, is the most expensive of the foreign exhibits. The U.S. exhibit cost $9.5 million, but its 20-story transparent geodesic bubble is one of the most striking of the pavilions.

The U.S. and Soviet pavilions have one thing in common: elaborate exhibits on outer space. They are separated by one of the many canals which interlace the 1,000-acre Expo site—located on two islands in the middle of the mile-wide St. Lawrence River and along its north bank.

The theme of the fair is "Man and His World." This is developed in a half-dozen theme pavilions and in the national pavilions themselves. The theme of the U.S. pavilion, for instance, is "Creative America."
